Council Passes $15 Million Budget

The Takoma Park City Council passed a Fiscal Year 2005 budget of $15,383,186 on June 21, a 9.75 percent increase from Fiscal 2004. The Council made a number of final adjustments in revenues and expenditures to fund certain small but well-supported programs. In the end, as required by law, a balanced budget emerged.

To help boost revenues for the year, two City-owned lots on Piney Branch Road near Flower Ave. will be sold. Official estimates are that the sale will bring in $400,000. That income will help to cover $400,000 in construction costs for the new Community Center.

The City also put $100,000 in reserve for possible legal fees in case the City decides to go to court to oppose aspects of the proposed expansion of Washington Adventist Hospital. Those funds may or may not ever be expended, but they do indicate that the City takes the hospital expansion seriously.

The City’s biggest cost is staff salaries and benefits. While the number of City staff actually decreased over the last year and now stands at 135 full-time equivalent, staff costs still increased. City employees received a 2.5 percent pay increase in the current fiscal year, and health insurance costs increased by 13.9 percent.

The City eliminated three staff positions over the last year by combining the positions of City treasurer and City clerk, and by eliminating two housing inspector positions. The City dos, however, have to pay Montgomery County to do the rental housing inspections formerly done by City staff.

Additional changes the Council made in its budget-balancing exercise:

- It cut one police position for half a year, saving $24,626.
- It restored $13,500 in funding for the Tool Library.
- It doubled from $25,000 to $50,000 a property tax rebate program for low-income homeowners.
- It allocated $20,000 to help with non-English-speaking City residents.

The City is also expending more than $5 million during FY2005 for construction.

City to Borrow $2 Million To Speed Street Repairs

The City Council voted June 6 to borrow $2,005,000 so Takoma Park can more quickly repair those streets that are most in need of work. The City has “locked in” a rate of 3.34 percent on a seven-year loan from Sun Trust Bank.

Most councilmembers wanted to move quickly to take advantage of current low interest rates – which are now rising.

Assistant Public Works Director Daryl Braithwaite explained to the Council June 1 that “with the loan, you do the big repairs – the high-ticket items – up front, so they don’t experience the initiation of later years.” Because the loan will allow the City to move more quickly, Braithwaite told the Newsletter, “each street is getting done sooner than it would on a pay-as-you-go basis, with the most urgent repairs done earliest.”

But the loan did arouse considerable controversy. Before the final vote, 17 residents sent e-mails to the City clerk in opposition to the borrowing. Two councilmembers, Joy Austin-Lane (Ward 1) and Terry Seamans (Ward 4), expressed serious reservations about the wisdom of taking out the loan, and voted against the motion. The Council approved the loan by a vote of 5-2.

The City expects to allocate $500,000 per year for street repairs over the next 10 years. Most of that money will go for loan repayment, with the remainder available to supplement street repairs. Although this is a short-term loan, there will be no impact on tax rates, as the City has annually allocated $500,000 from existing revenue for street repairs.

Councilmember Heather Mizeur noted that 22.5 percent of the City’s streets are rated in failing, very poor or poor condition. The City has 33 linear miles of streets.

Mayor Kathy Porter said, “The proposal is not going to increase the amount that’s expended each year for roads. This gets the absolute worst roads done.”

The plan is to begin spending the $2 million in FY 2006 (which starts July 1, 2005), and use all the loan funds over a two-year period.

Willow Street Yoga Awakens Spirits, Minds and Bodies

Suzie Hurley: “It’s more than twisting yourself into a pretzel.”

Suzie Hurley, the director of Takoma Park’s Willow Street Yoga Center, discovered yoga in an unlikely place: a Royal Air Force base about two hours outside of London. The wife of a U.S. Air Force officer, Hurley came to the small town of Woodbridge with a strong interest in meditation, but wanted to explore something that involved physical movement. Growing up, she had been quite a jock, playing basketball, soccer and field hockey. “I liked to move my body and I wanted to investigate spiritual discipline, so yoga seemed a natural,” she says.

The spiritual aspects of yoga appealed to her interest in meditation and the physical movement appealed to the athlete in her. It was 1977 and finding yoga instructors was not easy in a small English town. Undaunted, Hurley taught herself using books. At that point her interest was mostly in the physical side of yoga—hatha yoga. But she soon discovered some incredible dividends from executing various yoga positions or asanas. “I found that the positions were different than anything I had known from sports and they seem to alleviate mental and physical tension, freeing up energy,” Hurley says. “I had four children by then, ranging from 12 years to six months old, and I needed a lot of energy. I also noticed that problems seem to roll off my shoulders more easily,” she says.

She started teaching yoga classes in 1981. The first class consisted of seven students from the Officer Wives’ Club, but Hurley knew it was going to be her life’s calling. The class soon expanded to 30. When her first husband was relocated to a U.S. Air Force base in Fayetteville, N.C., Hurley resumed teaching there, finding that many had misconceptions about yoga. She encountered people who did not realize “it was more than twisting yourself into a pretzel and munching on sprouts.”

Council Supports Gay Marriage, And a Good Time Is Had by All

It’s not all that often that the Takoma Park City Council gets a standing ovation, but that’s what happened July 12, when the Council unanimously passed a resolution in favor of same-sex marriage.

The resolution was introduced by Bruce Williams and Heather Mizeur, two openly gay members of the Council. And it gave the Council and the community an opportunity to display a well-known Takoma Park characteristic – overtly and proudly taking a progressive position ahead of the curve.

Mizeur explained that she had a number of reasons for introducing the motion: “the ugly debate in the Senate” on a constitutional amendment to outlaw same-sex marriage; the fact that nine couples in Maryland, supported by the American Civil Liberties Union, have filed suit seeking the right to marry; and that many friends and constituents have asked for such an affirmative move by the City.

Mizeur explained that she had polled the members of the Council before introducing the motion, so it was clear from the start that the measure would pass.

Eighteen people, both gay and straight, testified in favor of the motion. One, a toddler, explained shyly, “I have two mammies,” but did not elaborate.

Another, George Taylor, a local Presbyterian minister, declared, “You are witnessing Takoma Park at its very best tonight” – a sentiment that seemed to be shared by the audience.

While the City does not have the right to marry people – Maryland law reserves that power to the counties – the City will file an amicus curiae brief in support of the nine couples who are suing for the right to marry in Maryland.

The City has for several years provided benefits for domestic partners (both gay and straight), and has maintained a domestic partnership registry.

Takoma Park is the first municipality in the state to pass a resolution in support of same-sex marriage, and its initiative garnered considerable media attention, including an article on the first page of the Washington Post.

Free Compost Bins Available from County

Montgomery County wants you to recycle your yard waste and grass. In fact, they’re keen on the idea that the county is giving away compost bins.

You can use the bins to turn all kinds of vegetable organic matter into compost you can use on your garden. That includes lawn and plant trimmings, leaves, and vegetable food waste.

The compost bins are available at the county’s main waste transfer station at Route 355 and Shady Grove Road or at county regional services centers.

The regional services center closest to Takoma Park is at 8435 Georgia Ave. in Silver Spring, Phone 301-565-7300 for information. For the county’s Solid Waste Division, call 240-777-6400.

Another way to recycle and reuse yard waste is “grasscycling,” or simply mowing your lawn in such a way that the lawn clippings can be left on the lawn to decompose. The results: less work for you, less fertilizer to buy, and less solid waste to deal with.

The county reminds the lawn mowing public that the key to successful grasscycling is correct mowing, which yields small clippings. These clippings can decompose within days, releasing nutrients and organic matter into the soil. Check out Montgomery County’s online publication about grasscycling at www.montgomerycountymd.gov/deptmpl.asp?url=/content/dep/Grasscycling/home.asp.

New Disease, Sudden Oak Death, Affects Other Plants Too

By Brett Linkletter City Arborist

Sudden Oak Death, a disease new to the United States, is caused by the pathogen Phytophthora ramorum. This disease is responsible for widespread tree mortality in central and northern California and has also been detected in nurseries in Oregon, Washington, California, and British Columbia on the West Coast.

The disease was first identified in 1993 in Germany and the Netherlands on rhododendrons. Though the disease has not yet made its way to the East Coast, it could eventually reach the area. It is important to know what to look for when buying plant stock.

The common name “Sudden Oak Death” is now known to be somewhat misleading. The blighting of all the foliage on large trees appears suddenly, but it may take several years after the trunk infection started before the foliar symptoms appeared. It also affects many plants besides oaks. Rhododendrons, some viburnums, some buckeyes, sequoias, bigleaf maples are a few of the trees and shrubs that have been identified so far.

Also, not all oaks seem as susceptible as others. The oaks we refer to as the “red oaks” such as Northern red oak, pin oak, and willow oak, are all highly susceptible. “White oaks” such as white oak, overcup oak, and swamp white oak do not seem vulnerable.

Symptoms on affected trees and shrubs vary considerably by species and it is difficult to differentiate plants infected with Sudden Oak Death from those infected by other pathogens. In some hosts, only leaf infections occur, resulting in irregular lesions and spots.

In others, cankers occur on large branches and main stems. Tree and shrub mortality usually occurs from infected cankers, which are diffuse and develop rapidly. Bark may discolor, appear water soaked, and bleed dark liquid at the margins. Dark lines often occur in the inner bark. Discoloration only goes a few millimeters into the wood. Death to the plant may occur within several months to several years after initial infection.

The disease also makes the host more vulnerable to other pathogens – overtly and proudly taking a progressive position ahead of the curve. The City will file an amicus curiae brief in support of the nine couples who are suing for the right to marry in Maryland.

Hypoxylon canker and Armillaria root rot, which are very common in this part of Maryland and are often fatal.

The spread of Sudden Oak Death (or Phytophthora ramorum) likely occurs through infected plant material, rainwater and soil. Plants with foliar symptoms may play an important role in the transmission of the disease to bark canker-infected plants. Data suggest foliar-infected plants support spore production, and foliar infection may precede bark canker infection. Moist, cool, windy conditions are believed to spread the pathogen by dispersing spores from the leaves of foliar-infected plants.

The full host range of Phytophthora ramorum is not known and it is likely that several more species of trees and shrubs will be added to the list. If you suspect a plant is infected with Phytophthora ramorum, contact the Maryland Department of Agriculture at 410-841-5920.

An inspector will visit the site and take a sample for testing in the Phytophthora Testing Laboratory. If you’d prefer, City Arborist Brett Linkletter can take a look before you contact the state. He can be reached at 301-891-7612.

Building Wealth Begins With Homeownership

By Linda Walker
Affordable Housing Manager

How often have you thought about buying a home in the past couple of years? Now may be the time to take advantage of a low interest loan program that is being promoted by the State of Maryland. "More House 4 Less" is the state’s new campaign to help homebuyers obtain low interest mortgages, and settle in a home. Here are a few questions that may point you in the direction of becoming a homeowner via the Community Development Administration’s (CDA) Maryland Mortgage Program.

Do I need good credit to get a CDA loan? Yes, acceptable credit is required, but a participating lender will be able to help you analyze your credit standing.

How do I start the process? If you have already found a house you want to buy, then you will need to contact a participating CDA lender to be approved for the program.

For further information, you may contact Linda Walker, affordable housing manager, at 301-891-7222 or visit Maryland’s Community Development Administration’s Website at www.morehouse4less.com. Questions can also be posed by e-mail to SingleFamilyHousing@dhcd.state.md.us.

The Takoma Park City Council will begin its review of the rent stabilization law (Takoma Park City Code Chapter 6 Housing, Article 5 Rent Stabilization) to evaluate the current requirements of the ordinance this fall. We encourage you to become a part of this discussion.

The City’s rent stabilization ordinance, enacted in 1981, is an important part of the Council’s ongoing efforts to provide diverse and affordable housing opportunities within the community. The ordinance regulates how often a tenant’s rent can be increased and establishes limits on the amount of rent that can be charged by a landlord.

There are many ways you can become a part of this discussion. You can contact your councilmember. You can submit your comments to the City in writing or by email. You can attend one of the Council meetings set aside for this discussion. You can testify at the public hearing.

Housing Mailbox:
Security Deposits Earn Interest

By Moses A. Wilds, Jr.
Landlord-Tenant Coordinator

Q: How much interest am I entitled to on my $60 security deposit?
Lived in my apartment for two and a half years.
A: Security deposits earn 4 percent simple (not compounded) interest annually in accordance with Sections 8-203 and 8-203.1 of the Real Property Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland, as amended and incorporated by reference at Section 6-411 of the Takoma Park Housing Code. The interest accrues at six-month intervals (2 percent every six months) from the day you give the landlord the security deposit until the day it is returned. It is payable for security deposits of $50 or more. The Office on Landlord-Tenant Affairs often gets calls from landlords asking why they have to pay 4 percent interest when interest bearing accounts are only earning 1-2 percent. The state law on security deposits would have to be changed and so far, that has not occurred. Total interest on a $60 security deposit would be $360 for a tenancy of 2½ years. For further information, you can call 301-891-7215.
That’s Not a Puddle, It’s a Vernal Pool

By Ed Murtagh

Walk through the woods around Sligo Creek in springtime and you’re likely to encounter a vernal pool – and you’ll probably walk on by without giving it a second thought. If you look at it at all, you may think it’s a deep puddle or a marshy spot.

Vernal pools are important because they provide a unique habitat for many species of amphibians, invertebrates and turtles. They typically dry up in the summer, so fish cannot live in these bodies of water. Without fish feeding on them, many species can breed safely in these pools. Some species are called “obligates,” which means they depend on the vernal pools for at least part of their life. In the Sligo Creek watershed, wood frogs and spotted salamanders are examples of obligate vernal pool species. In Sligo Creek Park, even though the creek is biologically impaired, our vernal pools are frequently full of tadpoles, amphibian eggs and invertebrates.

But these valuable, little-understood bodies of water are vulnerable. Like wetlands, vernal pools are being threatened by development. Also, like swamps and bogs, vernal pools are viewed by many people as nuisances, areas that need to be “improved” and the depressions are frequently filled in or leveled out. Even if the vernal pools themselves are not disturbed, removing nearby trees or developing upland areas will impact vernal pools.

Even though vernal pools are important links to ecological health, there is a lot that scientists still do not understand about them. The Maryland-National Capital Park & Planning Commission and the Montgomery County Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) have been mapping the vernal pools in Montgomery County as part of the Countywide Stream Protection Strategy. DEP and M-NCCPC are developing a Biological Monitoring Database. The database will help us better understand vernal pools and their importance in the ecosystem. The condition of the vernal pools can be one of the indicators of the health of the entire ecosystem.

A new book on vernal pools is expected to be published next year by McDonald and Woodward Publishing. See www.mwpubco.com/VernalPools.htm. Also, Tina Schneider of Montgomery County M-NCCPC is working with EPA and Patuxent Wildlife Refuge to develop the “Mid-Atlantic Guide to Conserving Vernal Pools and Other Seasonal Wetlands.” This publication is expected to be available later in 2004.

So remember: that’s no puddle – that’s a valuable ecological habitat!

Small vernal pool in the upper Sligo Creek Park woodlands

But it’s more: vernal pools (vernial means spring) play a key but little understood role in our ecosystems. A vernal pool is a small seasonal body of water, sort of a temporary wetland. In our area, vernal pools typically form in depressions during the winter and spring and disappear by summer. They are usually fed by stormwater runoff or ground water and contain no fish. Vernal pools can be found in many locations such as woodlands, floodplains, and meadows.

“Getting There with Faith”

From a comfortable chair in the Library, you too can trek to 18,000 feet in Nepal amidst magnificent Himalayan scenery and attend a spectacular Buddhist festival where costumed monks dance to reenact their religious history. Faith Stern, local author, will show slides at the Takoma Park Library on Wednesday, Sept 8 at 7:30 p.m. and will sign copies of her book Getting There with Faith: Adventures of a Travel Addict, recently released by Beilzina Press.

“Himalayan Happening” is one chapter in a book filled with a diversity of activity. According to one reviewer, “If you like travel and adventure, you’ll love this book. The author relates hiking, climbing, canoeing and skiing trips. She travels around the world, visiting many unusual places, and describes them in an entertaining way. Hardly any trip goes exactly as planned, but the unexpected only seems to intensify the author’s delight in the experiences.”

Another review: “From Guatemala to Romania, from Machu Picchu to Madras, from New Zealand to China, you’ll feel you are actually there. You hike the White Mountains, the North Cascades and the Sierra, climb Mt. Rainier and the Grand Teton; ski in Italy; canoe the Boundary Waters; and trek in Nepal.” Devoted library patrons, Faith and her husband Kurt have lived in Takoma Park since 1964, but their itchy feet have already taken them to six continents. Travel and outdoor adventures have been a significant part of their lives despite the couples’ involvement in civic affairs, in chamber music and in their professions. Their ear-net Porter is repeating the performance this summer at special request. A grant from the Washington Redskins makes this program possible.

A veteran of the Washington theater scene, Porter teaches upper school drama at Stone Ridge School in Bethesda. He has appeared in theater productions at Arena Stage, the Source, the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and the Lumina Theatre Group. He has toured nationally with the Kennedy Center’s Programs for Youth and Families. Porter lives in Takoma Park and is a Takoma Park Library patron.

Socratic Inquiry for Everyday People: Another Evening with Chris Phillips

Chris Phillips, the peripatetic teacher of philosophy for children, returns to the Takoma Park Maryland Library on Wednesday, Aug. 4, at 7:30 p.m. (following the 7 p.m. story time led by Tina Hudak). Phillips will lead adults and children ages 8 and up in an evening of philosophical discussion using the ellocutionist, or indirect, mode of inquiry that Phillips uses.

Chris and his wife, Cecilia have visited the Takoma Park Maryland Library on many occasions to lead these discussions. Each time there has been a new crowd with no way to anticipate which way the discussion will go? But each adventure into philosophical inquiry has been fascinating. Information about the Society for Philosophical Inquiry (SPI), founded by Chris and Cecilia Phillips, and the associated gatherings for philosophical discussions, can be found at www.philosopher.org. The following description is taken from that Web site.

The SPI is a grassroots nonprofit organization devoted to supporting philosophical inquirers of all ages and walks of life. Its members strive to form and sustain “communities of philosophical inquiry,” which meet in groups typically called Socrates Cafés. These meetings take place at coffee houses, libraries, hospices, senior centers, nursing homes, prisons, plazas and other public spaces, bookstores, homeless shelters and community centers; and at schools, where we often call our gatherings Philosop- phers’ Clubs® or Socrates Cafés. We at SPI are devoted to spreading a version of Socratic inquiry that enables each of us, within a group setting, to become more autonomous thinkers and doers and more expert questioners and listeners.

Our fundamental desire is to encourage and support people who are curious and perplexed and filled with a sense of wonder, so they can dialogue for discovery and dialogue for democracy. And we are here for those who would subscribe to the Socratic ethos that the examined life truly makes for a richer existence.

Phillips’ most recent book, Six Questions of Socrates, has joined his previous books, Socrates Café and the children’s book The Philosophers’ Club in the collection of the Takoma Park Maryland Library. Please join us!

Summer Quest Reminders!

- Techno-savvy readers can send us a blog at http://www.cityoftakomapark.org/summerquest/index4.html
- The Washington Wizards are offering two complimentary tickets to a designated Wizards game to those kids (ages 9-15) who read 10 “chapter books” as part of their summer reading during July and Aug.
- Those who leave town can pick up a postcard at the front desk to send word back (or perhaps draw a picture) of their adventures. Those fortunate who are traveling outside the country will have to buy their own stamps, but we really want to hear from you. Send us a card directed to 101 Philadelphia Ave., Takoma Park, MD 20912. We will put them up on display.

School-age children and adults are invited to a special performance of “The Odyssey” by local theater artist Ritchie Porter. The program will be presented in the Children’s Room of the Library on Tuesday evening, Aug. 17, at 7:30 p.m. Last year’s performance by Porter of “The Odyssey” was a remarkable accomplishment that captivated the widely diverse audience. Those with no prior knowledge of Homer’s great epic were enthralled by the adventure, whereas the more sophisticated among the audience were treated to a hilarious interpretation involving horse props from the toy box and the kitchen cabinet.

Looking for a way to become more active in your neighborhood? Is public safety an important concern for you or would you like to see your neighborhood better prepared for emergencies? Do you enjoy people and sharing ideas with them? If you can answer yes to any of these questions, now may be the time to become a Neighborhood Safety Contact. This group of residents becomes knowledgeable about community safety and serves as liaison between their neighborhoods and safety specialists, like the police.

More than two dozen of your neighbors have already joined this program, but more are needed. The time commitment required can be minimal or extensive, depending on your schedule, interests and the needs of your neighborhood.

For more information, contact Dr. Wolfgang Mergner 301-587-3050 or Buddy Daniels 301-270-5789, or another member of the Public Safety Citizens Advisory Committee.

Det. Frank Webb undertakes the dirty and time-consuming task of processing a stolen vehicle, which had been involved in a robbery. The design and surfaces of a car’s interior rarely yield good latent prints.

Investigation continues to build a strong case and locate the suspect, the processing of the crime scene by Sgt. Rick Bowers last fall has provided a vital link in the case.

Victims, too, hold an important element in solving burglaries. In June 2004, two burglaries were reported weeks apart along Ethan Allen Ave. In comparing pawn shop records to the crime reports, A/Sgt. Richard Poole was able to base an arrest warrant on information provided by the victims. One victim had just purchased a DVD player and still had the packaging materials, which provided the machine’s serial number. Poole was able to match these with items pawned by a single individual, who has been charged with the thefts.

Residents are reminded that engraving items of value and keeping a record of the items and serial numbers can make the difference between recovering stolen property or losing it forever. For more information about the Police Department’s free loan of an engraving tool and Operation ID, contact the Police Department at 301-270-1100 or 301-891-7124.

Retirement Celebration Planned

Friday, Aug. 27 has been set for the retirement celebration of George Hubbard (right), who joined the Takoma Park Police in 1976 as a dispatcher. He retired May 1 as the captain in charge of the Support Services Division, including criminal investigations.

Anyone interested in attending or making a presentation at the event, to be held at the University of Maryland University College Conference Center, should contact Diana Dean at 301-891-7147 or Dianad@takomagov.org. The event is open, with tickets at $30 per person, covering dinner and retirement gift. Hubbard is currently an investigator with the WSSC Police Department.

About that time her first marriage ended and Hurley moved to Washington, D.C. Trying to make ends meet as a single mother of four, Hurley took a variety of jobs and finally was able to teach some classes at a local yoga center.

Hurley then sought formal yoga training, attending the Kripalu Holistic Center in Lenox, Mass., which is the primary teaching facility for Iyengar Yoga. Developed by B.K.S. Iyengar, it emphasizes alignment and precision in the various yoga postures—a breakthrough, Hurley says. “It was a major move from ‘how far can you stretch.’”

From there she studied extensively with Washington teacher John Friend, the founder of Anusara Yoga, which integrates universal biomechanical principles of alignment.

Anusara Yoga is the heart of Willow Street for two reasons, Hurley explains: its equal emphasis on strength and flexibility, and its focus on “a feeling for inner body awareness that begins from a place of self-acceptance and heartfelt celebration of life.” Hurley explains that “Anusara” means “to open or step into the divine flow of life—to open to the flow of the body.” The method “allows the student to get into their innate goodness,” she says.

After teaching in various locations, Hurley took the plunge and opened her first studio in 1994 on Willow St. (naturally), at a former Seventh-day Adventist building in Takoma, D.C. Without money to advertise, Hurley spread the word by handing out flyers all over Old Town. “I needed 60 students to pay the rent, but I was only making $15 an hour,” she remembers. “I was blown out of the water,” she recalls. Three years later Willow Street Yoga moved to its present location on 6930 Carroll Avenue just over the District line in Takoma Park, Md. The yoga studio occupies much of the ground floor of a tall office building.

Hurley says a good yoga method should emphasize alignment.

Since that first class, Willow Street has expanded, offering three exercise studios in Takoma Park with classes taught by 30 teachers. Besides Anusara Yoga, Hurley offers classes in Pilates, rhythmic yoga, tai chi, and spiritual belly dancing. Hurley in September 2003 opened a Silver Spring center on Fenton Street. “I had no intention of opening a second center, but I really want to offer yoga to the world, to more people,” she says. The Takoma Park center has over 1,700 students of all ages and Silver Spring has 695.

Among trends, Hurley notes the growing popularity of Pilates, which focuses on developing core strength. A quarter of her students take Pilates. Another trend is Vinyasa or “flow” yoga, which is attracting a younger crowd. The method links postures together with breathing and steady movement, which provides a strenuous aerobic workout, she says.

Hurley stresses new yoga students should look for a yoga method that emphasizes alignment. “The course is not safe if that is not stressed,” she cautions. Also look for a teacher with adequate training, she says. Willow Street teachers all have a minimum of five years of training. Among the Willow Street teachers are two of Hurley’s children, Joe and Kate Miller. Above all, Hurley says, students should look for a teacher with whom they make a connection.

Willow Street has benefited from a nationwide surge in interest in yoga—and in a real sense, Hurley has helped to build that momentum. As a well-run center that focuses on strengthening both the body and the spirit, Willow Street Yoga Center has become an extraordinary attraction drawing hundreds of students to Takoma Park.

tion of the Community Center, but those funds have been accumulated over the past six years and are accounted for separately from the annual City budget. See page 3 of the July Newsletter for a year-to-year account of Community Center funds.

The City property tax rate of 66 cents per $100 of assessed value was unchanged, but rising assessments mean that the City will realize more property tax revenue this year. FY 2005 runs from July 1, 2004 to June 30, 2005.

Got Electronic Stuff to Recycle?

“Speak With the Mayor” Resumes Sept. 8

The Mayor will not have Tuesday morning office hours from August 3 through August 24. Tuesday morning office hours will resume August 31. There will also be no Wednesday evening office hours in August or on September 1. Wednesday evening office hours will resume September 8.
They laughed at us for celebrating the Fourth of July on Monday, July 5. The Washington Post (bless their sarcastic little hearts) even ran a typical Takoma Park story, mocking our lovely town for choosing to observe the holiday on Monday, which was, after all, the official day off for many people.

But Takomans got the last laugh. While Sunday, July 4, was drenched with showers, raining out many official observances (though not the big fireworks on the Mall), Takoma Park enjoyed near-perfect toasty weather for our July 5 parade. It was the 115th Takoma Park parade—the longest running such parade in the Washington area. Weather was good for evening fireworks too.

Along with the usual antique cars, military units, rock and steel drum bands, politicians and sundry community organizations, the parade featured more than the usual amount of social and political commentary. Among our favorites: Billionaires for Bush, and Weapons of Mass Consumption (a full-size Humvee shell propelled by sweating pedestrians).

Sadly, the Lawnmowers Against Global Warming were down to one solitary (though energetic) mower.

Keep in mind that the Independence Day effort is a volunteer organization and welcomes your participation. For more on the July 4-5 celebration, see the Independence Day Committee’s Web site: www.takomapark4th.org.
