City/County Double Taxation Raises Questions

By Lea Susan Chartock

Takoma Park homeowners pay the highest city property tax rates in Montgomery County, and many residents are wondering why. True, some nearby municipalities in Prince George’s, such as Mt. Rainier and Greenbelt, pay more than we do. But last year, City tax rates were more than twice those of Rockville, the second highest in Montgomery County.

This year, the Takoma Park City Council kept the real property tax rate at last year’s level, $0.660 per $100 of assessed value. However, because property values have gone up, the same rate results in higher tax bills for owners and more tax revenues for the City.

There are probably two main reasons Takoma Park taxes are high. First, residents demand and get a higher level of services than many parts of the county. (For example, Rockville residents pay for trash pickup on top of their taxes and they don’t have a full-service police department or their own library.)

Second, the City is not fully reimbursed by the county for services the City provides—and which Montgomery County therefore doesn’t have to provide. This quick explanation, however, just leads to more questions. Do City residents pay for some county services that we don’t receive? Aren’t some services duplicated? Shouldn’t we be getting a larger reimbursement? Would we really have fewer services if the county performed them? And if we “gave back” services, would our taxes actually go down?

Property tax duplication is a complex issue, with a history that goes back to the 1970s. In 1973 the Montgomery County Code established a program to reimburse cities for services they provided that would otherwise be provided by the county. In 1975, the state recognized the importance of double taxation when the General Assembly passed the first State Tax Duplication Law. At the county level, resolutions in 1978 and 1981 adjusted the formulas used to calculate reimbursements.

By the mid-’90s, problems with the reimbursement program, particularly regarding police and road maintenance formulas, resulted in creation of a new county Double Taxation Task Force. This task force, composed of professional staff from the county and the affected cities (Takoma Park, Rockville, Gaithersburg, Chevy Chase and Barnesville), produced a report that the County Council adopted in September 1996.

That report provided that cities would be reimbursed based on what the county would have spent if it performed the service in the municipality, tied to the county’s actual, net, expenditures derived from property taxes. In other words if the county said it would spend $50,000 on a particular service, but Takoma Park spent $75,000 on that same service, the City would only receive a $50,000 reimbursement.

A Never-ending Controversy

The City Office of Management and Budget controls the entire process. It collects the data and calculates the rebate formulas, which are then submitted to the County Council as part of the annual budget process. The county can, and has, unilaterally changed the units of measure used in the formulas. According to Rick Finn, former Takoma Park city manager who has done extensive research on the issue of double taxation, the City’s tax rebate decreased between 1998 and 2001, though the annual county budget and property tax rate have continued to increase. Since FY2001, the City has seen the police rebate increase due to a written agreement entered into between the City and the county.

If Montgomery County operated the Takoma Park Library, they would close it, because there are other county libraries not too far away.

County reimbursements, like all revenues from all other sources, go into the City’s general fund rather than separate departmental accounts. Apart from the library aid, the City gets no additional money for the Takoma Park Library, says Suzanne Ludlow, Takoma Park’s community and government liaison.

Ludlow adds that the City also receives no reimbursement for other services, such as planning. The City is not required to be involved in planning efforts, but according to Ludlow, residents would be unhappy without the information, advice and advocacy City staff provide. A prime example of this service is the time City planners have put into the controversy over the expansion of Washington Adventist Hospital.

As for recreation, the City budgeted $1,043,394 in fiscal 2005, yet the only money the City receives is $100,000 for operating the Takoma/Langley Recreation Center. However, says Ludlow, the

Some First Impressions
From Our New City Manager

On July 12, Takoma Park got a new city manager, Barbara Burns Matthews, who moved here from Manchester, Mo., near St. Louis. City Communications Director Lorrie Moffet interviewed Matthews recently for the Newsletter to get a sense of how she’s adjusting to the wonders of Takoma Park.

Matthews: My first priority has been to get to know people in the community. I have spent numerous hours in meetings as I try to familiarize myself with the City, community, and staff. I have met with many neighborhood associations, citizen committees, and representatives of institutions such as Washington Adventist Hospital, Columbia Union College, and Montgomery College. I’ve also spent time with members of Sustainable Takoma, Sensible Growth, and the Folk Festival Committee. Additionally, I have met with representatives from the other governmental entities that the City interacts with regularly, including County Council members and representatives from the Executive’s staff, as well as folks from Park and Planning. And, of course, I have also made a point of spending time with the mayor, members of the City Council, and City staff.

Matthews: It has been very warm and welcoming. For instance, a number of residents have recognized me from the photo in the Newsletter and walked up and introduced themselves when I was having lunch in town. Takoma Park residents definitely have a strong sense of community, as well as a lot of pride about where they live. You don’t always see that in a large metropolitan area, and it’s been refreshing.

Matthews: The City staff has been a tremendous help in my first 30 days on the job. Even before I started work for the City, the staff sent me background materials to help me get up to speed on a number of critical issues. The employees clearly care about the City and genuinely seem to like working here.

Matthews: What are your short-term action items?

Matthews: The completion of the Community Center will certainly be a top priority. We will be reviewing the bid results for the next stage of the project with the mayor and Council in September, and I am looking forward to developing a funding plan in place to get the project done. I am also planning to continue my meetings with the various community organizations in Takoma Park. I hope to meet with these groups on a regular basis so I can keep in touch with community priorities. Another priority for City staff will be the review and analysis of the services that the City currently provides to address some of the residents’ concerns regarding tax duplication.

Matthews: On a personal note, how are you adjusting to life in this area?

Matthews: As you know, my husband and I are originally from Virginia, and we are very happy to be closer to our families. We recently sold our home in the St. Louis area and hope to be out of our temporary apartment housing and into a house by the end of the year.

Response from Councilmember Mizeur

Editor’s note: The members of the City Council also received the above letter from Mary Carter-Williams, and Councilmember Heather Mizeur shared her response with the Newsletter.

Dear Mary:

I take exception and offense to the section of your letter where you state, “Moreover, Councilmember Mizeur’s rationale for the [gay marriage] resolution was self-serving.” Is it self-serving for someone who has never been a victim of crime, to advocate for residents who ask me to go on record about auto theft and crime concerns? Is it self-serving for me, a non-veau dog owner, to look into the new dog leash laws and code enforcement issues when a constituent requests them? Then why is it self-serving for me to advocate for a gay marriage resolution – just because I happen to be gay – when my constituents ask that of me? Should you care to read through my files one day, I could document for you the overwhelming number of people who contacted me about the same-sex resolution, asking that I spearhead some action in our community. My response to those requests is no different than when I respond to concerns about the trash, potholes, crime, or barking dogs. I ran for this job to be a voice for my constituents and their concerns – whatever those concerns may be. I appreciate your right to dissent, but let’s not go into character assassination to do it.

Heather Mizeur
Councilmember, Ward 2

Letters To The Editor

Not All Support Gay Marriage

Bob Guldin’s summary of the discussion that preceded the City Council’s unanimous adoption of a resolution on same-sex marriage surprises me. One of the most important principles of a progressive city is respect for all views. Not only does the story fail to report an opposing view, it gives credence to the views of a “Coulter” – who because of such a young age lacks the mental constructs to analyze a public issue – while omitting the views of a 30-year resident who votes and pays taxes. Doesn’t that strike you as a bit odd?

I attended the July 12 Council meeting and objected to the resolution because of its flawed premises and its far-reaching implications. Most importantly, I opposed the resolution because it was formulated prior to broad public debate. Moreover, Councilmember Mizeur’s rationale for the resolution was self-serving. Has there been a compelling call in the total Takoma Park community for same-sex marriage, for supporting the ACLU suit regarding nine Maryland same-sex couples who would like to get married, or for joining Senate debate under way at the time regarding outlawing same-sex marriage? Was the Takoma Park election of November 2003 a referendum on same-sex marriage? Does the City Council have the license to assume that its will is the will of a silent majority? I don’t think so.

Unfortunately, we are in a tricky situation. Seventy-seven percent of the residents of Takoma Park are of voting age, but few vote and only a vocal few engage in public debate and attend City Council meetings. Yet our democracy will only continue to work to the extent that we protect two fundamental principles: the principle of vested powers and the principle of checks and balances.

Anything else invites political elitism and abuse. Unless the Takoma Park Newsletter is sold to private funds, I suggest that in the future reports all sides of a public issue.

Re-installing an Air Conditioner? Read These Electrical Safety Tips

If you are re-installing or starting up an air conditioner in your home that was temporarily prohibited because of enforcement of the Montgomery County building code conditions and restrictions on “air conditioners” on this page, you should be aware of the electrical safety issue raised by the use of large appliances such as air conditioners. Please read on to learn how to operate your air conditioners as safely as possible.

If your home was built around 1950 or before, you probably have fuses. If it was built after 1950, you probably have circuit breakers. Although they look different, they serve the same function: to protect the electrical wire in your home. Fuses are glass with a lead band that is visible through the glass base and screw into a fuse socket. This is different from a switch. The purpose of fuses and circuit breakers is to protect the wire they are attached to by keeping it from overheating. Oversized fuses or circuit breakers do not enhance the electric circuitry or the equipment they serve. The use of a too large fuse, the installation of a metal disk such as a coin in the fuse box, or the use of tape to keep a circuit open is a very bad and dangerous idea. It defeats the purpose of the fuse box or circuit breaker and compromises its integrity, increasing the possibility of an electrical fire.

To reduce the risk of an electrical fire from overheating, before you reinstall your air conditioning unit, you should:

- Remove all metal objects such as coins or metal slugs from the circuit breaker or fuse box.
- Remove any oversized fuses and replace with proper sized fuses.
- Remove any tape or other materials that may have been used to keep a breaker switch open.
- Keep the front door of the fuse or circuit box closed and locked.
- Move all flammable materials away from the fuse box or circuit breaker.

If the lights go out or the air conditioner stops working, you probably blew a fuse or tripped a circuit breaker. Switch off the air conditioner. You don’t need to turn everything off, but enough to reduce the load. Then go to the panel box, open the cover and look for the glass fuse with the black burn mark in the center.

There is a lead strip approximately ½ inch to ⅝ inch long. If you can see an intact lead strip, this is not the fuse that is blown. Unscrew the burnt-out fuse and replacement units for use during the balance of the summer months.

2. Window air conditioning units provided by landlords and removed prior to the adoption of the ordinance, must be re-installed and operational as soon as possible.

Air Conditioning Emergency Law Adopted

On July 26, the Takoma Park City Council adopted an emergency ordinance that allows for re-installing units a the property. The improvements can be used several times for other purposes and is improper to allocate all the costs to this unit.

3. Local rental housing units are now exempt from the requirements of Section 26.6(a)(6) of Chapter 26, Housing and Building Standards, of the Montgomery County Code for 90 days.

The City strongly recommends that landlord and tenants remove window circuit breakers or fuse boxes prior to re-installing the air conditioning units. Use of incorrect fuses or tampering with circuit breakers presents a severe fire hazard, as circuits can overheat when they carry more current than that for which they were designed.

This ordinance is a temporary measure and will expire on Oct. 24. The City Council is considering its options to ensure, on a more permanent basis, that tenants who have had access to air conditioning in the past continue to have such access. The Council will begin its review of possible options this fall. For more information, please check Council agendas on the City’s Web site (www.takomapark.org).

If you have any questions, please contact the Housing and Community Development Department at 301-891-7219.

Montgomery County Housing Fair Oct. 2

For the fourth consecutive year, the award-winning Montgomery Housing Fair will be held on Saturday, Oct. 2 at the Activity Center at Bohrer Park in Gaithersburg from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The daylong fair will offer fun activities for the whole family and provide free giveaways throughout the day, its main purpose is to educate Montgomery County residents on housing-related topics. As so many families in Montgomery County pay more than 50 percent of their monthly income for housing costs, it is important to provide residents with reliable and accurate information on housing-related topics.

The City of Takoma Park along with approximately 50 other exhibitors will be on hand to provide housing-related information and workshops will be held in English and Spanish on topics that include credit counseling, buying or refinancing a home, housing assistance and services, and services for seniors.

Last year’s event drew nearly 1,000 people to the Activity Center and organizers expect this year’s Fair to be equally well attended. Those who attend, and live or work in Montgomery County, are eligible to participate in a drawing for $500 to be used towards a monthly rent or mortgage payment.

If you are thinking about homeownership, want to improve your credit rating, or are interested in housing-related assistance programs, this is the place for you to be on Saturday, October 2. Bring your family, friends and neighbors to the Activity Center at Bohrer Park, Summit Hall Farm located at 506 South Frederick Avenue in Gaithersburg.

Housing Mailbox:

Housing Discrimination For Income Source is Illegal

By Moses A. Wilds, Jr. Landlord-Tenant Coordinator

Can a rental application in Takoma Park be rejected solely on the basis that the applicant receives a Housing Choice Voucher Program subsidy? The answer is no.

Chapter 27 of the Montgomery County Code prohibit landlords from using sources of income as the sole reason for rejecting a rental application. Any lawful source of income including inheritance, grant, pension, annuity, alimony, child support, government or private assistance or occupation must be considered in determining qualifications for rental or sale of property. Such applicants are to be treated the same as those not receiving assistance including verifying the sources of income and conducting credit checks. If a Housing Choice Voucher (formerly Section 8) Program (HCVP) subsidy would pay the entire rent, the applicant’s income and credit report may not used as a basis for rejection since the applicant is not responsible for paying the rent.

Conversely a negative credit report may be used to reject an applicant who is responsible for paying part of the rent under the HCV. Landlords may not eliminate a HCV subsidy applicant because the subsidy does not provide the required security deposit. Such elimination is viewed as a refusal to participate in the subsidy program and a failure to recognize the direct or indirect source of income.

Landlords should also note that their reference checks for applicants with a subsidy must be the same as for their unsubsidized applicants.

Chapter 27, Section 27-12 of the Montgomery County Code makes it illegal to discriminate in the rental or sale of housing on the basis of race, sex, marital status, physical or mental disability, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, presence of children, source of income, sexual orientation or age. Persons having complaints under Chapter 27 should contact the Montgomery County Office of Human Rights by calling 240-777-8450.

No Use Crying Over Spilled Storm Water: Manage It

Water runs downhill, that’s an undeniable fact. And with the heavy rains we’ve had this year, as well as the numerous springs that flow through Takoma Park, residents often have problems and questions about how to manage storm water — including rainfall that flows onto their property from neighboring properties and water that flows off their properties.

That’s why the City’s Department of Public Works has established a link on the City’s Web site to an excellent state resource on storm water management. You can find this fact sheet, called “Storm Water Conservation in Your Backyard,” on the Maryland Department of the Environment’s Web site. The direct URL is http://www.mde.state.md.us/assets/document/sedimentstormwater/rain_barrel.pdf.

Public Safety Picnic

A family picnic open to the public is set for Saturday, Sept. 25, 11 a.m. – 3 p.m. at VFW Post 350, 4th and Orchard avenues. The Public Safety Citizens Advisory Committee hosts the event, and will share information about public safety, emergency preparedness, and opportunities for becoming involved.

City Taxes and County Rebates

City provides more programs serving more children and adults than the county would offer if it took over recreation programs. While the county owns the buildings and makes necessary capital improvements, the City operates the facility and retains all program revenues. Last year, that came to $199,000, which does help the budget.

The largest pieces of the budget pie are Public Works and the Police Department. For Public Works, the City expects to spend $3,203,284 in FY2005. That pays for administration, building, equipment, street and park maintenance; the arboretum and urban forest-related functions, and the city engineer, in addition to refuse collection, disposal and recycling.

The solid waste portion of the budget is not reimbursed because county residents pay a separate fee for these services, whereas in Takoma Park, it’s built into property taxes. Deputy Public Works Director Daryl Braithwaite says that if it costs the City more to maintain the roads, that’s in part because of the City’s high responsiveness.

“If you have a problem with a pot hole on your street, or a crack in the sidewalk, you can call Public Works and get quick service,” says Braithwaite. “I don’t think you would get the same kind of response from the county side.”

Takoma Park residents are, in a sense, “big fish in a small pond.” Because the City is so small physically, the department “can get around to more places more frequently,” says Braithwaite. She cites leaf collection as an example. Public Works provides a six-week program versus one or two days of pickup scheduled in the county.

Recycle Electronics October 2

The City will host an all-electronics recycling event Saturday, Oct. 2 — so mark the date in your calendar. Accepted items will include computers, monitors, keyboards, modems, laptops, televisions, typewriters, fax and answering machines, phones, VCR’s, radios, stereos and tape players. Most electronic equipment contains potentially hazardous metals such as lead, mercury, cadmium and chromium. These materials need to be handled properly and not released into the environment.

The event is scheduled to take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Municipal Building. The time and location may change. The Newsletter and City Web page will have event information posted several months prior to the event.

If you have any questions, contact Daryl Braithwaite, 301-891-7615 or darylb@takomagov.org.

Rent Stabilization Law: Opportunity to Comment

The Takoma Park City Council will begin its review of the rent stabilization law (Takoma Park City Code Chapter 6 Housing, Article 5 Rent Stabilization) to evaluate the current requirements of the ordinance this fall. We encourage you to become a part of this discussion.

The City’s rent stabilization ordinance, enacted in 1981, is an important part of the Council’s ongoing efforts to provide diverse and affordable housing opportunities within the community. The ordinance regulates how often a tenant’s rent can be increased and establishes limits on the amount of rent that can be charged by a landlord.

There are many ways you can become a part of this discussion. You can contact your councilmember. You can submit your comments to the City in writing or by email. You can attend one of the Council meetings set aside for this discussion. You can testify at the public hearing.

“Rent control, that’s the hot button issue this year, Finn suggests it isn’t realistic to think the county is going to “take back the streets.” In practice, this would mean disincorporation, because you can’t have a police department if the jurisdiction doesn’t have authority over the streets it’s policing.”

Another factor affecting Takoma Park’s high tax rate is the lack of commercial development in the city. Both Finn and Ludlow stress that — unlike Rockville and Gaithersburg, both of which have substantially lower tax rates — Takoma Park has no industry and very little commerce to broaden the tax base. “We’re essentially a bedroom community,” says Finn, “with not much room for commercial development.”

In Finn’s opinion, the only way to cut taxes is by cutting services, since the City operates with a very small staff, 135 full-time equivalent positions, which has changed little over the last five years.

Mayor Porter says that during the budget discussions this spring, each City department was asked to develop proposals for cutting an additional 5 percent from their budgets. Examples of proposed cuts were reducing the number of recreation programs, cutting back evening hours at the library and reducing the programs offered to children.

The Fifth Sacred Thing
Reviewed by Steve Albright

Local residents may be offended to discover that, when Witches finally secede from the Union later this century, their new country takes shape around San Francisco Bay — not in a certain Mid-Atlantic town served by the Red Line.

Nonetheless, shelve your hometown pride, and spend some time in this futuristic Bay Area community, lovingly detailed in The Fifth Sacred Thing, a science fiction novel by Starhawk. In 2048, San Francisco’s residents live in exquisite balance with their ecosystem and each other. Cars are obsolete and asphalt has been pulled up; instead, foot paths snake through the town. Free-running streams crisscross the solar- and wind-powered city, which, viewed from a hilltop, is “a mosaic of jewel-like colors set in green.” Furthermore, everybody is equal. There is no hunger or poverty in future San Francisco; check, there’s no money. People live in extended tribal families; Everyone participates in decision making; everybody is liberated politically, sexually and emotionally. And everybody loves their work.

But we soon learn that the city is unique. Most of California has become sunbaked, racist and sex-hell-rulled by the Stewards, a fascistic Christian elite — think Margaret Atwood’s The Handmaid’s Tale on steroids — that keeps its battered populace at bay by controlling precious water and the drugs people need to fend off government-manufactured plagues.

We experience one year of this polarized future through the eyes of an extended San Francisco family: 98-year-old grandmother Maya, who came of age during the Summer of Love; Bird, a musician who is captured during a raid on a nuclear power plant and spends 10 tortured years in Steward custody; and Madame, a gifted healer who hikes south into Angel City (get it?) to help the resistance against Steward rule.

On one level, The Fifth Sacred Thing tells a tale of love, sex, violence, politics, passion, heartbreak, pain, magic and blood. On another level, the novel wraps a gripping adventure story around what is essentially a guidebook to the Goddess religion and how to live it.

Four things are sacred in the Goddess cosmology: air, fire, water, and earth. Where these four sacred things intersect, there arises the fifth — the human spirit. This spirit is put to the test in the novel’s second half, when San Francisco’s Witches have to decide whether their credo of nonviolence is strong enough to overcome the Stewards’ cruel onslaught. The Fifth Sacred Thing features graphic violence, lots of Left politics, and no love for patriarchy. It’s strong brew; not all readers may agree, after all, that we’re guaranteed a nasty, brutish future if we keep going the way we’re going. But I found the book hard to put down. It’s exciting, the characters are well drawn, and the author charts an alluring path out of our political and environmental morass.

The Fifth Sacred Thing, by Starhawk (1993), is published by Bantam Books. Steve Albright is a local writer and educator.

Fire and Safety

Fire-Injury Prevention At The Fair

Members of Takoma Park VFD were on hand at the Montgomery County Fair to help promote Fire-Injury Prevention. Aug. 16 was ‘Kids’ Day’ and lots of big and little kids came by the Fire and Rescue Tent to learn about fire safety. To get its message across, the department had on hand realistic fire helmets, 911 telephone simulators, and 2/new games – 3 Strikes and Fire Safety Question Wheel.

Fatal Home Fires!

1. Fires often start during the early morning hours when everyone is asleep.
2. Fires frequently burn for a long time before being discovered.
3. Fires kill more people from smoke inhalation and carbon monoxide poisoning than from burns. Victims are overcome while they sleep and either suffocate from lack of oxygen or from breathing poisonous gases or they suffer internal burns from breathing superheated air.
4. Fires can cause a loss of consciousness after only a short time because of the presence of high amounts of carbon monoxide.

The program’s success to the community, particularly the senior citizen volunteers. They would perform all administrative duties allowing the division to be more active in the community.

“The citizens wanted to be involved and COP opened up the world of policing to the community,” said Rosenthal, who worked for the department for 27 years before retiring as a lieutenant in 2001. “All municipal policing, especially in a small city like ours, has always been community policing,” Rosenthal noted. “What has happened is the continuing evolution and changing emphasis.”

After Rosenthal, Clarence Jacobs led the division following his death as a D.A.R.E. instructor. She reorganized the city’s crime blotter and supervised the crossing guards.

“I was looking at building on established programs and increasing our interaction and partnership with the community,” said Coursey, now employed as the Victim Assistance Section Coordinator for Howard County Police.

In the summer of 1985, the Special Enforcement Unit (SEU) was formed with four officers each assigned to a specific beat. This team, supervised by then-Sgt. Cynthia Creamer, became the next phase of COP. Moving beyond crime prevention, it was recognized for programs that involved city youth in positive lifestyle activities and resolution of quality of life issues. It was also responsible for strengthening and maintaining neighborhood and business organizations. In late 1998, the unit was dissolved, with the officers reassigned into the patrol division. The change came from many factors, including then-Chief Tom Anderson’s vision for integrating community policing into the entire department.

In late 1999 after consultation with city committees and neighborhood groups, the city was reorganized into three sectors, V, W, and X, each with three beats. A Whole-Scale Change event was convened with more than 100 city residents and business owners, City staff from every department, and others. As a result, each officer in the Department was assigned to a specific beat, with responsibility for getting to know the residents and problems of an area, as well as to respond to crimes within it. At the recommendation of the event participants, a COP segment was initiated on Takoma Park City TV’s magazine show “Snapshots” and staff from Code Enforcement were also assigned by beat.

The staffing shortages and personnel changes in the Police Department, beginning in 2000, restricted full implementation of the plan.

In January 2004, Takoma Park reinstituted a Community Oriented Policing Team. A newly named five-member team includes: a supervisor, Sgt. Kurt Gilbert; three officers, Tina Smith, Joe Butler, and Cindy Conrad; and civilian Nuisance Abatement Specialist Rudy Rice. Each officer, or sector specialist as they are referred to, helps identify crime trends and safety issues in their area and works with others to remedy any problems, said Gilbert.

While the officers have a role in COP, Gilbert says community participation is most important. Consequently, his team consistently recruits Neighborhood Safety Contacts to serve as liaisons between their neighborhood and safety specialists. “They [the community] play the biggest role. We can only go as far as they will let us,” said Gilbert.

(Next month will profile the team’s members and goals.)

Seven Street Robberies, and Neighbors Worry

Investigation continues on six robberies that took place along New Hampshire and Maple avenues in July. One additional robbery was reported in the last two weeks of August at New Hampshire and East-West Highway. While patrols are increased in these areas, residents are urged to contribute to a safer environment through efforts on their own properties (see box). The most notorious robbery took place July 26, near midnight in the 7100 block of Maple Ave. A family, including a child and a toddler in a stroller, walking home from the Metro after a long-distance trip was confronted by two men, one armed with a handgun. The father complied with a demand to give up property, while an accomplice on a bicycle demanded the woman’s purse. The woman’s screams had attracted neighbors’ attention and the suspects fled south on Maple.

An armed carjacking had occurred July 13 at Tulip and Maple, with three suspects described. On July 22 at about 10:30 p.m., a man was walking alone on Maple between Tulip and Philadelphia avenues, was robbed by a lone youth, who displayed a gun. The suspect, who fled in a dark green Ford Taurus, was described as about 6’3” with a heavy build.

Takoma Park Police also arrested a man on July 11 after a business reported an attempted armed robbery in the 6400 block of New Hampshire. The man was located nearby and arrested.

Takoma Park Police received 29 reports of robberies in the first six months of the year, one of which has not been verified. Of the 28 robberies, including attempts, armed and strong-arm robberies, nine have been closed with arrests or warrants. Two were suspended. TPPD received 44 robbery reports in the same period in 2003 and 36 in 2002.

Residents are reminded to pay attention to their surroundings and strangers when walking alone at night. Should an incident occur, comply with property demands, paying attention to details that will aid in a description of the suspects. Contact the police as soon as possible by calling 9-1-1 or from a cell phone calling 301-270-1100.
City Taxes and County Rebates

However, Joy Austin-Lane, councilmember for Ward 1, believes that there are small cuts departments can make here and there, "cleaning up" their programs, thereby freeing up money, some of which could be applied to street repair, for example.

Sustainable Takoma Questions

The question of how the money is being spent is key for the activists of Sustainable Takoma, who raised the issue during last year's election. According to Seth Grimes, a spokesperson, the group is not advocating turning over any portion of the city's operations to a third party. "The question is, what that would mean. If an outside company came in and told the city what they were going to save a significant amount of money, it would be welcomed. But "if an audit means some third party coming in and telling us that we could operate with fewer police officers,” she says, “that would be overturned."" The mayor acknowledges that she has no "scientific" basis for her belief, just discussion “with lots of people" over the years.

As to the kind of comprehensive audit groups like Sustainable Takoma are calling for, the mayor isn’t sure precisely what that would mean. An outside consultant could turn up additional efficiencies, the mayor says, such help would be welcomed. But "if an audit means some third party coming in and telling us that we could operate with fewer police officers," she says, "we know that. But is that what residents want?"

Conflict Resolution Benefit at Mark’s Kitchen Sept. 21

The Conflict Resolution Center of Montgomery County will hold a fundraiser Tuesday, Sept. 21 at Mark’s Kitchen, 7006 Carroll Ave. in Old Town. Part of the profits of that day will be donated by Mark’s Kitchen to maintain the program in your community. So by eating breakfast, lunch or dinner, you’ll support the program that advances peaceful solutions.

Conflict resolution and mediation are alternative ways to settle disagreements, different from, for example, calling a lawyer, mediation can be helpful for conflicts among neighbors, family members or employees and employers. The Conflict Resolution Center of Montgomery County offers free mediation to those who want to end their conflict constructively in a “win-win solution.” Contact the CRCMC at 301-593-9473.
From Folk to Pop:
Concerts Sponsored by Institute Of Musical Traditions

Institute of Musical Traditions, the production arm of Takoma Park’s House of Musical Traditions, is presenting a series of folk concerts this fall.
For those with a Celtic inclination, Andy M. Stewart & Gerry O’Beirne will sing at 8 p.m. Sept. 13. Scottish singer Andy Stewart’s voice and songs have graced the Celtic music scene for over 30 years, including as singer for the legendary band, Silly Wizard. Hailing from the West of Ireland, Gerry O’Beirne is a self-taught master of the six- and 12-string guitar, an accomplished songwriter, and a skilled arranger/producer. Joined by special guest, Baltimore-based Rosie Shipley on fiddle.
This concert, like the others listed, will take place at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Silver Spring, 10309 New Hampshire Ave. For more information, check 301-754-3611 or www.imtfolk.org. At 8 p.m. on Sept. 20, Gaye Adegbalola with Roddy Barnes will perform, undoubtedly including songs from their newly released CD “Neo-Classic Blues.” Adegbalola has been playing the blues since she was a child, and was a founding (and current) member of Saffire—The Uppity Blues Women. Roddy Barnes accompanies on classic blues piano.
And on Oct. 4, the Kennedys will perform their unique variety of styles ranging from roots rock to soulful acoustic pop. Despite their surname, Pete and Maura Kennedy do not play Irish music. The two guitarist-songwriter-singers have drawn devoted following with their chemistry, their love for each other, and their unashamedly idealistic pop vision.

Police Volunteer Carrie Spicer Turns 100

Carrie Spicer, one of the first senior volunteers with the Takoma Park Police, celebrated her 100th birthday in June at a retirement community in Richmond, Va. Long-term care facility, receiving greetings from many of her former TPPD colleagues. She volunteered eight hours a day, four to five days a week, for 11 years, doing research on special projects and administrative work in parking enforcement in the 1980s and 90s. A longtime resident of Wildwood Ave., she received several Governor’s Awards for her volunteer efforts with the police and as an animal rescuer. Spicer joined the department after retiring from a career in the Bureau of Engraving.

Construction at Cedar Crossing, Blair Road and Laurel Ave. To the south of the new Blair Road Bridge, there will be several curb extensions installed that narrow the street and expand the sidewalk in key locations. On the section of Carroll Ave. between Columbia and Philadelphia avenues, a five-to-six-foot-wide sidewalk and a planting strip that contains street trees, planters and pedestrian scale lighting will be installed on the south side of the street. Construction is anticipated to take place on Laurel Ave. this fall and on Carroll Ave. in the spring of 2005. Contact person: Ilona Blanchard, 301-891-7205, IlonaB@takomagov.org.

Upper Carroll Ave. Re-construction.

The Maryland State Highway Administration is reconstructing Carroll Ave. between Garland Ave. and University Boulevard. This project entails building a new bridge over Long Branch, installing bike lanes, landscaped medians, sides walks and crosswalks to reduce speeding and protect pedestrians and bike riders. Construction is anticipated to be completed during the spring of 2005. Contact person: Rob Inerfeld, 301-891-7219, RobertI@takomagov.org.

Gateway and Wayfinding Program.

To help motorists, pedestrians, and bicyclists better navigate their way around Takoma Park, the City is planning to develop a system of gateway and directional signage. The signage system will let people know when they have entered Takoma Park and guide them to various destinations around the City including commercial areas, public parking facilities, educational institutions, parks, and other municipal facilities. The community will be invited to provide feedback on the proposed signage system including new designs of the signs at various stages in the development process. There will be presentations of the proposed signage system at City Council meetings in November and December. Contact person: Rob Inerfeld, 301-891-7219, RobertI@takomagov.org.

Private Developments

exStorage.

This fall, the Sierra Corp. plans to construct a five-story building at 1352 Holton Lane (currently a storage company). The building will also contain four small retail storefronts that face Holton Lane. Although the new building will have five floors, only three floors will be visible from Holton Lane. The developer will install a new sidewalk, new street trees and pedestrian scale lighting. The project has received the support of the City Council and Montgomery County Planning Board. Takoma Metro and Environs.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) is negotiating with Eakin/Youngentob Associates (EYA), a developer that proposes to construct townhouses at the site of the Takoma Metro station, in Washington, D.C. In response to the proposed development, the District has undertaken two planning projects over the past few years that produced the Takoma Central District Plan and the Takoma Transportation Study. As called for in the Central District Plan, any development at the Metro site is likely to include a "village green" that would serve as a community gathering space. The Central District Plan also calls for between 65 and 95 townhouses at the Metro site. The agreement that WMATA is negotiating with EYA will likely require that EYA design and construct the replacement parking and transit facilities at the Metro site. WMATA is required to hold a public hearing to receive input on the new site design for the transit facilities.

The Takoma Park City Council has directed City staff to work to ensure that adequate transit facilities remain on the site if development is approved. These facilities include a sufficient number of bus bays to accommodate expected increased ridership, as well as safe access for pedestrians, bicyclists, Kiss-and-Ride, handicapped and taxi patrons. EYA has expressed an interest in receiving input on the design of the entire development from the Takoma Park community. No dates for public discussions or hearings have been announced. Other Development in Takoma, DC.

While most of the commercially-zoned land in Old Town Takoma Park has viable commercial buildings on it, the Takoma DC side of the business district has a greater concentration of vacant lots and underutilized properties. This is beginning to change with a number of projects either under construction or at earlier stages in the development process. Further along is Elevation 314 located between 65 and 95 townhouses at the site of the Takoma Metro station, in Washington, D.C.
