City Budget Passes After Deliberation

By Virginia Myers

The Takoma Park City Council passed the FY08 budget Monday, June 18 after months of meetings, two public hearings and some unexpected, last-minute deliberation. A few tweaks on proposed expenditures will give the City a full-time coordinator for senior programs at the Recreation Department (from 19 to 30 hours), provide City Council members with new PDAs and increase assistance for homeowners struggling to pay rising property taxes.

City Manager Barbara Matthews' proposed budget was largely accepted by the City Council. The proposed tax rate of $0.61 per $100 of assessed valuation — a two-cent decrease from last year — was accepted. But Matthews' proposed $19,411,809 in expenditure for the general fund increased $50,000, will cover increased costs to the City as it supplements the State Homeowner Property Tax Credit. The credit, designed to relieve property tax increases for low-income residents, comes from the state and county, but many local jurisdictions, including Takoma Park, supplement state and county funds. In 2004, Council voted to increase the supplement from 15 percent of the state credit to 30 percent, then voted for another increase, to 50 percent, in 2005.

Recently, the state changed the way it calculates qualification for the credits, and the number of homeowners receiving benefits increased dramatically. The $50,000 in Takoma Park's budget covers 165 homeowners who received the credit in FY07.

Also added to the originally proposed budget is $9,500 to purchase personal digital assistants (PDAs) or "alternative constituent communication" devices for councilmembers. And, $5,000 was set aside for grants to non-profit organizations. The grants could be used for such projects as the city's recent participation as a co-sponsor for Historic Takoma's House and Garden Tour.

The new position at the Recreation Department — and the associated $25,000 increase in the budget — was the result of discussion regarding part time and contractual, temporary labor versus full time employment. Councilmember Terry Seamans said he was concerned that the City was hiring individuals on a part-time basis as a way to avoid paying health care benefits. An evaluation of part-time employment from the city manager (see www.takomaparkmd.gov/clerk/agenda/items/2007/061107-2.pdf) clarified various positions in Public Works, the Library and the Recreation Department and prompted some discussion, though councilmembers agreed to more thoroughly examine the issue over the next year.

They did, however, establish their informal intent: "We would rather have people who work full time with benefits than people who work part time and contract in order to save on benefits," summarized Mayor Kathy Porter. "That's been a long standing council opinion." She suggested a resolution to that effect, and consideration of the resolution as the city manager organizes the FY09 budget. Porter also suggested there might be some support for a living wage policy.

As for the senior activities coordinator, Carole Ank, who handled much of that discussion regarding part time and contractual, temporary labor versus full time employment.

Festive Fourth is Planned

With the Chief of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, Jim Jarboe, and TPVFD Auxiliary President Edna Pike in the lead, this year's Independence Day Celebration will kick off its theme, Saluting Our Public Servants, at 10 a.m. July 4 with a parade beginning at Takoma Junction. With more than 60 floats and entries, including Columbia Union's Acro Ains Acrobatic Team, the Takoma Park Child Development Center, Washington Revels and D.C. Pan Jammers Steel Band, Body Love Belly Dance and five VIPW posts, along with scores of politicians and public representatives, the parade will wind around through old town, Maple Avenue, and past the Community Center.

Evening events will begin at Takoma Park Middle School at 7:30 p.m. with music from Takoma Zone and the Takoma Park Community Concert Band. Parade winners will be announced, and a round of patriotic songs will precede fireworks, set to begin at 9:30 p.m. Rain date is the first clear evening.

Remember when a phone call to the Takoma Park Police Department was answered with a question: What county do you live in? Or what about when you called to get a permit for building that shed out back? Whether or not you were allowed to build depended upon which side of the county line you stood. If you were unlucky enough to be one of the homes that sat right on the county line, you had to figure out which county got your tax dollars.

This was Takoma Park before unification. For those who remember, they were days of confusion and conviction - for 17 years, activists fought to erase that county line and make it so that Takoma Park would be solely in Montgomery County. This year, July 1, 2007, marks the 10th anniversary since that battle was won.

It began in 1980 when Sammie Abbott, the famously feisty, then-new mayor of Takoma Park, put unification on his long "to do" list of initiatives. It remained a popular issue through 14 attempts to pass it through the state legislature.

When Takoma Park was founded, it was rural enough for county lines to be relatively inconsequential. As it grew, however, wrangling over who paid for what began. Fifty-seven percent of the City, and two-thirds of its population fell to Montgomery County, the other 43 percent (and one third population) to Prince George's. Residents paid twice - once to the city and again to the county - for some services. Counties reimbursed the city for services it provided, but reimbursement was uneven.

Besides this, different systems for services like stormwater management (now controlled by the city), zoning and police services made paperwork a nightmare. Police officers sometimes were required to show up in court in both counties at once; in a city newsletter article at the time of unification, then-City Manager Beverly Habada remembered one officer receiving a bench warrant because he couldn't be in two places at once. Even getting a taxi was complicated across county lines.

Police services, as well as the quality of the county school systems, were two forces driving the activists for unification --- but political climate proved to be the tipping point. To unify the City, activists needed a state law, but the Prince George's legislative delegation and especially the Prince George's County Executive at the time, Parrish Glendening, resisted giving up their portion of Takoma Park for years. Then former Takoma Park Mayor Stephen DeGiudice was elected to the Prince George's County Council, and Glendening began running for governor. Things shifted. An election year approached, politicians traded favors.

In March, 1994, the unification bill passed 134-1 in the House of Delegates; it passed in the Senate 33-2. Then in November 1995, city residents voted in a binding referendum to unify the City; the move was official July 1, 1997.

The City celebrated with a week of events, including "Montgomery County's Biggest Block Party," a bike parade, and a ceremony complete with cake. And that year's Block Party, "a bike parade, and a ceremony complete with cake. And that year's fire-works were especially bright: they lit up the word's "One City, One County."

Credits Relieve Tax Burden
Deadline September 1

You may be entitled to some money -- but the deadline for notifying the state is September 1, 2007! The Maryland Tax Credit Programs are designed to help low income home owners and renters by limiting the amount that they must pay in property taxes. To receive the tax credit, an application and all supporting documentation must be sent to the Maryland Department of Assessments and Taxation no later than September 1 of each year.

Legislation enacted in the Maryland Legislature in 2006 increased the maximum property assessment eligible for credit from $150,000 to $300,000 and also revised the net worth requirement to exclude IRAs and qualified retirement saving plans. So even though your home may be assessed for any amount, it's only the first $300,000 of its assessed value that will be counted for this credit. You must apply for this program every year even though you may have received a tax credit in the past.

To obtain an application for the home owners' or renters' tax credit programs, you can call the State of Maryland at 1-800-944-7403, access it on their website, www.dat.state.md.us/datweb/taxcredits.html or call Linda Walker at 301-891-7222.

Tenant Help Line Coming to Your Neighborhood

Do you have a question regarding your rights as a tenant? Do you know if the rent you are paying is legal under the City's rent stabilization program? If you can't seem to fit in the time to call or visit the Takoma Park Landlord-Tenant office during regular business hours, beginning in July, the office staff will be coming to your neighborhood.

If you are interested in having us set up shop for a few hours on a weekday evening or on a weekend day on a convenient corner in your neighborhood, please contact the Office on Landlord-Tenant Affairs at 301-891-7222.

Facelift for Main Street Facades

Have you noticed how good our Main Street is looking? Business and commercial property owners along Carroll, Laurel and Westmoreland Avenues in Takoma Park have been using money received through grants from the Main Street Takoma Façade Improvement Program to spruce things up. Through grants from the State of Maryland, Main Street Takoma has received $65,000 over the last two years and applied for an additional $100,000 in fiscal year 2008. The program gives matching grants to building owners and operators for up to 50 percent of the cost of pre-approved improvements to the outsides of their buildings.

Several local buildings have benefited from façade grants, including: Savory Café, House of Musical Traditions, Shampoo, Park Florist, and Summer Delights, as well as Historic Takoma, a new office at Takoma Junction.

Everyone wins when the buildings along the streets of our business district look well maintained. Pedestrians feel safer, shoppers feel more inclined to browse, businesses get more customers, and residents enjoy the choices and benefits offered by a healthy retail community.

The application process is relatively simple but requires at least two bids and all required permits to be in place. Funds are limited, but some money is still available for projects this year. For more information on receiving a Façade Improvement Grant or how you can be involved, please visit www.MainStreet-Takoma.org.

Main Street Takoma is a community-based initiative of the Old Takoma Business Association.

COLTA’s Corner Cases

By Moses A. Wilds, Jr.
LANDLORD-TENANT COORDINATOR

Williams v. Reden Management

On May 30, COLTA issued a decision in a case involving a former tenant’s request that her security deposit plus interest and any penalty allowed under the city’s Landlord-Tenant Law be returned. COLTA’s decision held that (1) the landlord did not comply with Section 8-203(g) of the Real Property Article of the Maryland Code when it failed to send to the tenant’s last known address within 45 days of the termination of the tenancy, a written list of damages claimed together with a statement of the cost actually incurred; (2) the landlord’s failure to comply with Section 8-203(g) resulted in the forfeiture of its right to withhold any portion of the tenant’s security deposit and (3) the tenant was awarded a total of $587.50 which represented the $580.00 security deposit plus interest of $87.50 (five six-month periods at 4 percent simple interest per year = $50; and five six-month periods at 3 percent simple interest per year = $37.50).

globally, from Portland to Paris, cities are advocating expanded use of bicycles for urban transportation. This increased bicycle use, it is assumed, will help cut pollution and greenhouse gases, save money and resources, and improve the health of an increasingly sedentary public. The United States has seen a surge of interest in promoting bicycle use in recent years. This past May 18th was national ‘Bike to Work Day.’ Many American cities, including both Washington, D.C. and Takoma Park, are investing in new routes, trails and bike racks, along with cycling education programs, to encourage more biking.

But despite these efforts, the US still lags far behind its European counterparts. A full eleven percent of Germans, twenty percent of Danes and twenty-seven percent of the Dutch bicycle commute to work regularly, compared to only one half of one percent of Americans. America, to be sure, differs from Europe in many ways. We lack those traffic-calming cobblestone streets, the pedestrian-friendly old city centers. We have huge SUVs on our roads, not those little Smart cars that look like they could fit in your backpack. But it appears that a good part of the difference is cultural. In Europe, bicycles are generally accepted as having an equal right, with cars, to use of the streets. What is more, many European countries have a long tradition of bicycle clubs where cycling know-how is passed on from generation to generation.

And according to the new school of American cycling experts, the last two points are key. It is precisely an increase in safe bicycling know-how, plus a broader cultural shift toward acceptance of bicycles as normal vehicles on the road, that promises the biggest payoff—both for individual biker safety and for society at large.

The New Thinking

Mathematics professor Boris Kunin, who is also an expert cyclist, phrased this new ‘bikes belong here’ mentality with admirable precision. “Motorists,” he said, “are much more accustomed to other motorists doing things in certain ways—executing turns, for example, in a certain way. That is why the majority of experienced cyclists subscribe to the view that bicyclists fare best when behaving, and being treated as, vehicles.” Despite popular beliefs to the contrary, Kunin says that bike lanes, bike paths and other ‘facilities’ that segregate cyclists from the real world of traffic are generally more dangerous places for cyclists than were the roads themselves.

Allen Muchnick, an adult cycling instructor with the Washington Area Bicyclist Association (WABA), agrees. “Operating a bike on public roads is the safest and most efficient way to operate a bicycle.” Bike paths, despite their pastoral appearance, frequently have sharp bends and hidden turns which become literally lifethreatening places when fast-moving cyclists collide head-on. Bike lanes, which put bicycles off the right side of car lanes, make it harder for a cyclist to make a left turn. And a cyclist going straight ahead at an intersection belongs to the left of the cars making right turns. Worst of all, such lanes communicate to drivers that cyclists are an unpredictable and alien—as opposed to a normal—vital presence on the road.

Some of the ‘new thinking’ purists—such as cycling engineer John Forester, author of the widely revered book Effective Cycling—oppose bike lanes with almost a religious fervor. Muchnick’s opposition is more measured. In conditions of fast-moving, single-direction traffic, and where there are few or no intersections, bike lanes make sense, he says. For example, Muchnick would favor bike lanes, especially if combined with other traffic calming measures, along Takoma’s New Hampshire Avenue.

Reducing car speeds, he says, “is the biggest thing that would help bicyclists.” It would be great for pedestrians, too.

Close to home

The acceptance of bicycles as a part of the road, as noted above, also involves a cultural shift. In this respect Takoma Park appears to be ahead of the pack. According to Jay Lee, member of the city’s Safe Roadways Committee, Takoma is not only a place where locals do a lot of biking, it is also something of a biker destination. “I’ve noticed on the weekend that bikers come into the city from D.C. and from outside the city to visit the farmer’s market, or go to Mark’s Kitchen,” Lee said. Local parks and trails, such as those in Sligo Creek, are also an attraction for family cyclists. The Safe Roadways Committee, whose members include a number of avid cyclists, has recently been enthusiastically planting bike racks throughout the city.

On Maple Avenue near Sligo Creek Parkway, the committee is funding the installation of ‘sharrows,’ or chevron and bicycle symbols, directly onto the road surface. The symbols serve a dual-purpose: to remind drivers to share the road, and to help bicyclists keep a safe distance from opening car doors. The City of Takoma Park has also dedicated a chunk of a national Safe Routes to School grant to training school children in safe cycling skills. The classes will be taught by specialized instructors from WABA, and will hopefully nurture a whole new generation of people prone to two-wheelers.

Revolution in Cycling hits Takoma Park

By Paul Grenier

This year’s Bike to Work Day on May 18 drew thousands of cyclists, including many from Takoma Park. Here, Washington area bikers pedaled toward Freedom Plaza, where a rally showed broad commitment to more bike use in the city and its suburbs.

Beat the Price of Gas

With gas prices still topping $3 a gallon at many stations, it’s time to keep your emissions and costs down by carpooling, using public transit, biking, or walking. Look into telecommuting. If you do drive, consider a hybrid, bio-diesel, or low-mileage vehicle. In any automobile, be sure your tires are properly inflated to save as much as 3 percent on gas mileage, and change your oil every 3,000 miles for engine efficiency. And if you’re biking, look for the new racks planted around Takoma Park by the Safe Roadways Committee. For more info (and inspiration) about biking, see story, this page.

Prune and Snap

While you’re busy watering your thirsty garden this summer, don’t forget about your trees. Not only do they need water—they also need pruning, and this is as good a time as any to do it.

Continuing our discussion with City Arborist Todd Bolton, we learned that the old oak in the backyard could use a little trim—but not much. Eying a neighbor’s tree, Bolton warned against too much pruning and, specifically, a technique called ‘lion tailing.’ This ‘outdated, old fashioned’ practice, says Bolton, involves trimming all the leaves and small branches but the ones at the ends of the tree’s big branches—hence the name, lion tail. It puts extra stress on the structure of the branch because all of the weight is at the end and can create sunscald, which causes bark to peel. It also can remove too much of the leaf surface from the tree, reducing the amount of photosynthesis performed so that the tree may end up starving, so to speak. This may feel like a technicality best left to tree care experts. There are many companies out there who can prune your trees, for a price. The City keeps a list of possibilities. But your trees may not even need pruning. Bolton says to use the trilogy, “dead, dying, diseased” to determine which branches to remove. If there are only a few, and they are safely away from anything they could harm should they fall, you can allow them to fall naturally. Or, if it seems like a small job, you might be able to do it yourself, with a good ladder, a pruning saw, knowledge of pruning techniques, some energy and a lot of nerve. If you do hire a service, the price will vary, but most companies charge over $150 per hour, and pruning a large tree can take several hours. Only Maryland Licensed Tree Experts are allowed to do tree work for pay in the City of Takoma Park. As for my backyard oak, I’m going to let the branches fall where they may, and send my 16-year-old son monkey-climbing up to get the bigger ones.

Friends Book Group Reads Heinlein

Come join the Friends of the Takoma Park Md. Library Book Group as they discuss "Stranger in a Strange Land" by Robert Heinlein on Wednesday, July 18, from 7:30-9 p.m. The discussion will take place in the Atrium Room on the third floor of the Takoma Park Community Center. Published in 1961, "Stranger in a Strange Land" is a science fiction classic. In the novel, Heinlein tells the story of a human baby who is raised by Martians and then returns to Earth to find his own child. The book is provocative; as "Library Journal" notes: "Heinlein has been rightly criticized for presenting as facts his opinions, which state that organized religion is a sham, authority is generally stupid, young women are all the same, and the common individual is alternately an independent, Ayn Randi-

Firehouse Report

The Crime Report

As of May 31, the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department and the personnel of the Montgomery County Fire and Rescue Service assigned to the Takoma Park station responded to 400 fire-related incidents. The department handled or assisted with 1,201 rescue or ambulance-related incidents for a total of 1,601 incidents this year. Totals for 2006 were 424 and 1,014 respectively, for a total of 1,438, representing an increase of 163 incidents.

Home Fire Prevention Checklist
- Is your stove top clean and free of clutter?
- Are your countertop appliances in good repair (cords, too)?
- Are you smoking in your home? Do you have large, deep, non-tip ashtrays?
- Are matches and lighter up high and away from children’s sight and reach?
- Do you have adequate electrical circuits for heat-producing appliances such as ranges, dryers, microwave ovens and electric space heaters?
- Are paints, gasoline and other flammable liquids stored outside away from the house?

Special note: It’s that time of the year for storms, resulting in power outages. We must be vigilant when using candles. Keep candles at least three feet away from anything that can burn and put them out when you leave the room or go to sleep. Never leave them unattended!

In the event of a fire... Get Out, Stay Out
What’s the most important thing to know about fire? How to escape from one safely.

Make a plan. Make sure you have a fire escape plan that you practice at least twice a year. Can you identify two ways out of each room and your outside meeting place? Sound the alarm. Make sure you have smoke detectors on every floor of your home and in or near sleeping areas, even the basement. Have an adult test them once a month and change the batteries at least twice a year when you change your clocks. Remember!

Feel the door. If you have to escape from a room, make sure you feel the door before you open it. If the door is hot, there’s probably smoke and fire out there, and you’ll have to use your second way out.

Crawl low. If you have to escape through smoke, get on your hands and knees and crawl with your head down about knee high where the air is cooler and cleaner.

Close that door. Close the door behind you to keep the fire from spreading.

All together now. Once you’ve made it outside safely, go immediately to your family’s meeting place. You’ll know where to go because it’s in your escape plan.

Call for help. Once everyone has checked in at the meeting place, call the fire department. Make sure everyone in your family knows the number by heart.

Stay out. Most important of all: Never, ever go back in to a house or building that’s on fire. After the fire, always wait for the fire department to say it’s okay to go back in.

Are You Ready?
A Guide to Emergency Preparedness

As residents keep an eye on the weather channel and prepare for hurricanes and summer storms, FEMA has come up with a free, comprehensive guide that consolidates facts and tips on disaster survival techniques and preparation. "Are You Ready? A Guide to Citizen Preparedness" does outline advice for natural and man-made disasters, and provides a step-by-step outline on how to prepare a disaster supply kit, emergency planning for people with disabilities, how to locate and evacuate to a shelter, and how to create a contingency plan for family pets. Man-made threats from hazardous materials and terrorism are also treated in detail, and opportunities for citizens to become involved in community protection through FEMA’s Citizen Corps initiative and Community Emergency Response Team training program is also provided.

Copies of “Are You Ready” are available, free, through FEMA Publications warehouse, 1-800-480-2520, FEMA publication H-34.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS CHECKLIST FOR TAKOMA PARK RESIDENTS

Whether it’s the threat of extended power outage, terrorist act or a severe storm, residents are encouraged to prepare for potential emergencies. Preparation should include sufficient materials for at least the first 72 hours of such an emergency since outside help may not be available during this period.

Preparing an Emergency Supplies Kit

Assemble the supplies you might need for the first three days if confined at home or if you need to evacuate due to an emergency. Items you will need in an evacuation should be in easy-to-use and carry, preferably water-resistant containers such as backpacks or duffel bags.

Your Kit Should Include:

- A supply of water (keep at least a three-day supply for each person - one gallon per person per day is recommended). Change the water frequently.
- A supply of non-perishable packaged or canned food and non-electric can opener. A supply of water (keep at least a three-day supply in case of fire; and 2) a location outside your neighborhood in case an evacuation prevents you from returning home. Choose an out-of-state friend as a check-in contact for everyone to call. Try to keep cell phone use to a minimum to avoid overwhelming the system.
- A change of clothing, rain gear and sturdy shoes.
- A first aid kit, extra medications and the list of family physicians with telephone numbers.
- A battery-powered radio, flashlight and extra batteries sufficient for three days.
- Credit cards, cash (ATMs may not be working) and an extra set of car keys.
- A list of important family information and documents such as wills, insurance policies, immunization records, bank account numbers and telephone numbers; include serial number of medical devices such as pacemakers. Keep these records in a water-proof container.
- Special items for infants, elderly or disabled family members.
- Extra eyeglasses or contact lenses and supplies.
- Don’t forget books and games for entertainment.
- And do not forget pet supplies.

Create a Family Disaster Plan

Plan how your family will stay in contact if separated by a disaster; pick two meeting places: 1) a location a safe distance from your home in case of fire; and 2) a location outside your neighborhood in case an evacuation prevents you from returning home. Choose an out-of-state friend as a check-in contact for everyone to call. Try to keep cell phone use to a minimum to avoid overwhelming the system.

Meet Your Neighbors

Get to know your neighbors and your Neighborhood Safety Contact and determine how you can work together during and after a disaster. Consider how you can reach out to help those neighbors who have special needs, such as the frail elderly or people with disabilities. Make plans for mutual childcare in case parents can’t get home.

Useful Contacts

In the event of an emergency, turn on your radio and listen for information from the Emergency Broadcast System at WTOP (FM103.5) or WMAL (AM-630).
- For 24-hour taped information about terrorism and emergency preparedness, call 240-777-4000.
- For telephone counseling regarding fears and concerns, contact 240-777-2600.

LISTA DE COMPRÓBACIÓN DEL ESTADO DE PREPARACIÓN PARA LOS RESIDENTES DE TAKOMA PARK

Ante la amenaza de un ataque bioterrorista o de una tormenta severa del invierno, se recomienda a los ciudadanos que se preparen en siempre para las emergencias. Usando la siguiente lista, pueden tomar medidas ahora y estar listo para hacer frente a situaciones de emergencia.

Preparar un Equipo de Materiales en Caso de una Emergencia

Reúna los víveres que usted pueda necesitar por una duración de tres días por se queda atrapado en casa o necesita evacuar debido a una emergencia. Los artículos que necesitaras en una evacuación se deben almacenar en un envase fácil de utilizar, prefírable que sea uno con resistencia al agua, tales como tazas o bolsas para cargar en la espalda (mochilas).

Su Equipo de Materiales Debe Incluir:

- Una fuente de agua (Guardar por lo menos una fuente de agua para tres días, un galón por persona para cada día es recomendado).
- Una fuente de alimento empaquetado o enlatado y abrelatas manual. La comida enlatada no debe requerir agua.
- Mantas o bolsos para dormir para cada miembro de la familia.
- Un cambio de ropa, ropa especial en caso de lluvia y zapatos fuertes.
- Un equipo de primeros auxilios y medicaciones prescritas y una lista con los nombres y números de teléfono del doctor de la familia.
- Un radio, una linterna a pilas y tener suficientes baterías para tres días.
- Tarjetas de Crédito y efectivo y una copia extra de la de su carro.
- Una lista de información y documentos importantes de la familia tales como polizas de seguro, expedientes de la inmunización, números de la cuenta bancaria, números de teléfonos importantes; incluir el estilo y el número de serie de dispositivos médicos tales como marcapasos. - Artículos especiales para los niños, aniones o lisados de la familia.
- Lentes y fuentes adicionales de lentes de contacto.

Crear un Plan en Caso de un Desastre

Planear como su familia permanecerá en contacto si se separan en un desastre: escoger dos lugares de reunión: 1) una localización a una distancia de seguridad de su hogar en caso de fuego; y 2) una localización fuera de su vecindad en caso de que una evacuación evite que vuelva a su hogar. Elegir un amigo que esté fuera del estado como un “punto de contacto” para que cada miembro de su familia llame. Disminuir el uso del celular para evitar la congestión.

Conoces a sus Vecinos

Trate de conocer a sus vecinos y determina cómo pueden trabajar juntos después de un desastre. Considere cómo pueden ayudar al exterior especialmente a los que tengan necesidades especiales, tales como los ancianos o las personas incapacitadas. Hacer planes para el cuidado de los niños en caso de que los padres no puedan regresar a casa.

Contactos Útiles

- En caso de una emergencia, escuche su radio para obtener información del sistema de radiodifusión de emergencia en WTOP (FM 103.5) y WMAL (AM 630).
- Para información grabada acerca de terrorismo y cómo aliarse para una emergencia llamar al 240-777-4000.
- Para consejo por teléfono en referencia a sus temores y preocupaciones llamar al 240-777-2600.

Takoma Park Lions Win Nine District Awards

At the Lions Multiple District Convention held in Dover, Delaware, the Takoma Park Lions Club won the following 2006-2007 awards: The Five Star, Publicity, Service to Youth, Service to Community, Club Bulletin, Blood Collection, Eye Glass Collection, Visitation and District Governor's Exceptional Award.

At the convention, Lion Keith Van Ness, incoming president of the Takoma Park Lions Club, presented the Harry Wickline Memorial Awards to the three Lions Clubs with the most eyeglasses collected this year. Harry Wickline, for whom the award is named, became a member of the Takoma Park Lions in 1957 and was a dedicated Lion until his death in 2001, just shy of his 97th birthday. He had a deep compassion for the visually handicapped, served as president of the Lions Eye Bank and Research Foundation and was president of the Lions Pre-School for the Visually Handicapped. He was an early advocate for the Eye Mobile, which led to the Lions Mobile Health Unit.

This year 49,272 pairs of eyeglasses were collected by the clubs in District 22-C. Many of these eyeglasses can be reconditioned and distributed to adults and children in developing countries, thus bringing them the gift of greatly improved vision. First place award went to the Waldorf, Md Lions Club (5,031 pairs). Second place award went to the Rockville Lions Club, and the third place went to the Randolph Lions Club.

BUDGET

programming, is retiring this month; Recreation Director Debra Haiduven expects to hire a new coordinator, along with several other positions that came up during the budget process, by fall.

Another proposal from Council that was not accepted in this year's budget was an audit of the evidence gathering and processing unit at the Police Department. Alerted by residents to a serious backlog of unprocessed, seized property, Councilmember Terry Seamens requested the audit, which would have cost $35,000. Police Chief Ronald Ricucci reported that he is already investigating evidence procedures, and Council agreed to hold off on an official audit until the department has had an opportunity to clean things up on their own. Ricucci is in the midst of hiring a clerk who would oversee the evidence unit; he expects to have someone on board by July.

The new budget also included a number of carryover items from FY07 - funds not yet spent that will fall into FY08. Some of the higher-priced items include $74,620 for the Safe Takoma Initiative, $77,000 for a design charrette for the Ethan Allen Gateway design, a $60,000 boiler replacement, and $40,000 for gateway signage. There are also funds for an archive project with Historic Takoma, a solar roof project for the Community Center, public works facility security measures, streetlight installation, defibrillators for City buildings, police communications equipment and modifications to the police evidence facility.

Once again, the Takoma Park Jazz Festival drew music-lovers to Jequie Park for cool sounds, a bit of art, and some good eats.
