Jarrett Smith elected in Ward 5
Instant runoff utilized for first time in Takoma Park

Residents of Ward 5 elected Jarrett Smith as their new City Council representative on July 17. Smith won 97 votes in the City’s first use of an instant runoff, a voting method instituted in 2006. His opponent in the runoff, Eric Hensal, got 80 votes.

Under the instant runoff system, voters make first, second and third choices on their ballots. If no candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote during the first round of voting, an “instant runoff” kicks in. This new contest is between only the top two candidates. In it, the ballots from voters who chose a write-in or the third, eliminated candidate as first choice, are recounted, using their second choice candidate vote. Those votes are distributed to the appropriate remaining candidate.

During this election, the initial slate included Melinda Ulloa. In the first round, she won 33 first-choice votes; Smith won 84 and Hensal won 71. Because there was no clear majority in that first round (Smith’s votes totaled 44.2 percent of the vote, Hensal’s 37.9 percent, and Ulloa’s 17.4 percent), the election went to instant runoff. The second-choice votes from those who voted for Ulloa were distributed to the two leaders.

Smith won the runoff with 54.5 percent of the vote. The election drew more interest than

City Manager Barbara Matthews to Resign
Suzanne Ludlow appointed acting manager

Takoma Park City Manager Barbara Matthews has accepted the position of city manager for the City of Rockville, Md. She leaves for her new position after eight years of service in Takoma Park. Matthews’ last day in Takoma Park will be Sept. 7. Deputy City Manager Suzanne Ludlow will step in as Acting City Manager beginning Sept. 8, as the search for a replacement manager begins.

A legacy

Under Matthews’ leadership, the City strengthened its financial structure, reduced crime, and made major investments with City, state and federal funds, in roads, facilities, and “green” infrastructure. She oversaw the renovation of the Takoma Park Community Center auditorium and the Public Works facility, with particular attention to high standards of environmental sustainability.

Matthews was City manager when solar panels were installed on several City facilities, and she presided over the implementation of the City’s speed camera program and the development of a sidewalk improvement plan to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

On a broader scale, she guided Takoma Park through the recession. Large cuts in revenue from the State of Maryland and Montgomery County led to the first layoffs in the City’s history in June 2010. Matthews worked with county and state officials to strengthen revenue commitments to municipalities, and this year’s budget reflects some of her efforts. She was able to recommend adding several positions back to City government ranks.

Matthews served as co-chair of the Municipal Revenue Sharing Task Force that examined municipal tax duplication payments in Montgomery County, and lobbied hard to ensure that the county paid a fair amount to the City of Takoma Park for municipal tax duplication, particularly for police services. Her efforts in this area con-

A FANTASTIC FOURTH!

Takoma Park celebrated Independence Day with one of the most beloved holiday parades in the metropolitan area. As usual, the floats and marchers showed the creativity and wry sense of humor for which the City is known. Counterclockwise, from above, a Bolivian dancer, small fry watching the festivities, a proud cheerleader, young violin players on the Suzuki music float, biker buddies, and a demonstration from marchers who associated one presidential candidate with “M-O-N-E-Y.”

Mission Serve helps out around town

What better way to start out the Mission Serve project during the week of July 2 than with a derecho that swept through the area, pulling down power lines and felling trees and bringing record-breaking high temperatures? But downed trees, lack of power, and heat did not deter the 300 volunteers who came to Takoma Park to work on 25 homes owned by residents who had signed up for the project.

With temperatures soaring to over 105 degrees, the workers were able to accomplish many of their goals: clearing yards of trash and debris, repairing roofs, painting exteriors, replacing rotting wood on porches and decks, creating accessible ramps and much more.

Here are some of the photos of the volunteers at work. Thank you Mission Serve and the DC Baptist Convention for helping our Takoma Park residents with needed repairs to their homes. The City Council has budgeted additional money this fiscal year to have another project that will help homeowners who need repairs. For further information about future programs, contact Linda Walker at lindaw@takomagov.org or 301-891-7222.

The State of Maryland’s tax credit programs are designed to help low income home owners and renters by limiting the amount they must pay in property taxes. Homeowner and Renter Tax Credit applications must be filed before Sept. 3, 2012 for the 2011 tax year. If eligible, the credit will be sent to you by way of a check. To receive the tax credit, an application and all supporting documentation must be sent to the Maryland Department of Assessments and Taxation. Eligibility is based on household income. To obtain further information about the programs and an application, you can call Linda Walker at 301-891-7222, or access it on the state’s website, www.dat.state.md.us/sdatweb/taxcredits.html.

Feeling Overwhelmed?

During the warmer months, maintaining your yard can require a lot more work. But remember: City code requires that you keep up. The height of all grass and weeds must be kept below 12 inches. Vines, shrubbery, hedges and other vegetation must also be maintained. Vegetation may not encroach on the public sidewalk or extend out over the public sidewalk; that includes any vegetation overhanging the public sidewalk below 8 feet.

It’s not just about the law: it’s also about keeping our community beautiful.

Keeping the Kibbutz

A Docs in Progress film and discussion
Aug. 9, 7:30 p.m.

Film director Ben Crosbie's parents had utopian memories of their experiences living on a kibbutz called Kfar Giladi in Israel, where he was born. His Israeli mother was also born there, his father arrived as a volunteer from Wales in the 1970s, and they recall it as a thriving and resilient community of shared experience.

But when Crosbie returned in 2007 after years of living away, he found a community struggling with transition. Kfar Giladi no longer fully embraced the communal lifestyle and economy. Instead, it was becoming a more capitalist enterprise, with differentiated pay for different workers and outside labor supplementing what the members could do to tend the fields and manage the community.

Crosbie and co-director Tessa Moran use their 54-minute film to explore the heartbreak experienced by some members, and the opportunities embraced by others, in a story of nostalgia, the effects of communal living and the hope of what lies ahead.

The film will be followed by discussion with the film makers. For more information, see keepingthekibbutz.com.

tributed to the county council's decision to allot an additional $653,000 to Takoma Park in the county’s FY 2013 budget.

Mayor Bruce Williams was a councilmember from Ward 3 when the City Council hired Matthews in 2004. “We are grateful for the many contributions Barb made to the Takoma Park community,” he said. “While we hate to see her go, we know that she is leaving our government with a solid financial footing and with a great group of professional and dedicated City staff.”

Indeed, in a note to her staff, Matthews said, “No city manager could have wished for a more talented, hardworking, and dedicated staff... All around the City are the tangible signs of what we’ve accomplished together, and I will take with me nothing but fond memories of the time I’ve spent in Takoma Park.”

Moving forward

The City Council has tapped Suzanne Ludlow to serve as acting City manager during the search process to replace Matthews. Ludlow has worked for the City of Takoma Park since November 1993 and was appointed deputy City manager in January 2008. She has also held the positions of Community and Government Liaison, Economic and Community Development Coordinator and Assistant Housing and Community Development Director for Special Projects. She served as Unification Coordinator from 1995 to 1997, successfully guiding the City’s consolidation into Montgomery County.

“My goal is to ensure that City services run smoothly during the transition process,” Ludlow said. “It helps that I work with wonderful folks here who are both skilled and adaptable. Barb Matthews’ legacy to Takoma Park is a government with a strong structure of financial accountability and professional management, and I am committed to maintaining what she has built.”

To recruit a new City manager, City Council will use an executive search firm, along with the soon-to-be-appointed City Manager Selection Committee of City residents. The committee will work with the community during the process.

Residents interested in serving on the City Manager Selection Committee should submit a standard City committee application form, available from the City Clerk's office or online at www.takomaparkmd.gov by Friday, Sept. 7. Residents may also contact their Councilmember or the Mayor to discuss their interest in serving. The Council will make appointments to the committee in September.

With a storyteller’s heart and a photographer’s eye, Jim Landry traveled by train across America in 1980. His journey took him from Washington, D.C. to Chicago, where he boarded the California Zephyr for the West Coast to visit friends in San Francisco and Los Angeles. When the train stopped in Denver, Jim made a crucial mistake... from which, he says, we all can learn.

Landry will present his experience in How to Catch a Moving Train, or My Trip Across America, a multimedia performance that is part of the We Are Takoma series, on Friday, Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. During the 50-minute performance, Landry weaves stories, photographs and original music with his observations of a changing America.

Joyce Hanula, who died July 15, was a hero. Hanula was a long-time player in the City’s adult softball league, renowned for her pitching, but beloved for her grit. She pitched just weeks before her death, despite a long and valiant battle with cancer. She also coached baseball and softball, was an avid sports fan and a strong-minded, well-informed unionist who worked for years for the United Mine Workers.

Many of Hanula’s softball buddies attended the memorial service held for her July 23, where friends and family remembered her for her laughter, her indomitable and irresistible spirit and the love and devotion she shared with her family—wife Joan Leigh Warren and sons Charles Antony Warren and Max David Warren. Joyce is also survived by brothers and sister Robert, Richard and Carol Hanula.

Hanula, who was born in Brownsville, Penn., lived for many years in Takoma Park. She lived in Silver Spring at the time of her death.

Teammates and opponents in the local league mourned her death, praised Hanula’s wit and tenacity and described her as extraordinary, always friendly in competition, uplifting and inspiring. In fact, when Hanula was diagnosed with cancer, the team renamed itself in her honor. It then won four championships in a row. The ReJoycers will dedicate its next season to her.

Contributions in Hanula’s memory may be made to the Capital Area Food Bank, 645 Taylor Street, NE, Washington, D.C. 20002 or www.capitalareafoodbank.org.

What to Do During a Thunderstorm

If you are:

In a forest
Seek shelter in a low area under a thick growth of small trees.

In an open area
Go to a low place such as a ravine or valley. Be alert for flash floods.

On open water
Get to land and find shelter immediately.

Anywhere you feel your hair stand on end (which indicates lightning is about to strike)
Squat low to the ground on the balls of your feet. Place your hands over your ears and your head between your knees.

In the United States, an average of 300 people are injured and 80 people are killed each year by lightning, and other associated dangers associated with thunderstorms include tornadoes, strong winds, hail and flash flooding. Flash flooding is responsible for more fatalities—more than 140 annually—than any other thunderstorm-related hazard.

- Avoid showering or bathing. Plumbing and bathroom fixtures can conduct electricity.

Drew Tracy appointed interim police chief

City Manager Barbara Matthews has appointed an interim police chief, Drew Tracy, to serve while a search to replace retiring Police Chief Ronald Ricucci is underway. Ricucci retired July 31. A nationwide search process for a replacement is being conducted.

Tracy, a long-time Montgomery County police officer, has more than 29 years of law enforcement experience. During his tenure with Montgomery County Police Department, he held a number of positions, including District Commander of the Silver Spring District for four years. He retired from the Montgomery County Police Department at the rank of Assistant Chief in September 2011.

Tracy has an MBA from Hood College and received a Certified Public Manager designation from George Washington University. He is a graduate of the FBI National Academy and the FBI National Executive Institute.

“I am very pleased with the selection of Drew Tracy,” said Chief Ricucci, when asked about the appointment. “Drew and I worked together for many years. He is a true leader and teacher who will take the department to the next level. He is a graduate of the FBI National Executive Institute. His leadership and experience will only be plus for the department and the community.”

Drew Tracy is excited about taking the interim position. “I am looking forward to serving the citizens of Takoma Park with the women and men of the Takoma Park Police Department,” he said. “During my role as Interim Chief, we will continue to work with the community in communicating effectively and developing a strong working relationship. Public safety and a responsive police department will remain our focus.”

A new chief for Takoma Park is expected to be chosen in late August or early September. Tracy is expected to remain Interim Police Chief until the new chief reports for work.

False alarm turns into major drug arrest

One of Takoma Park’s biggest drug busts went down July 19 when Takoma Park Police seized more than 18 pounds of marijuana, worth about $106,000 on the street, and $68,000 in cash from a house on Belford Place. Police arrested Vincenzo Alfieri, 28 of Takoma Park. Jeffery Morsch, 27, of Raleigh, N.C. for possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, possession of controlled dangerous substance manufacturing material, possession of controlled dangerous substance proceeds, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana- large quantity), and possession of drug paraphernalia.

The arrest took place at 11 a.m. and was initiated by a residential burglar alarm that went off accidentally. Officers arrived to investigate and encountered Alfieri, who appeared to be nervous and uncomfortable. Police asked if everything was all right, and Alfieri gave them permission to enter.

Officers smelled marijuana and found two small plastic haggles of it, along with drug paraphernalia, in plain view inside the house. Both suspects were arrested and transported to Central Processing Unit (CPU), and when investigation continued, with a search and seizure warrant, the 18 pounds of marijuana turned up, along with the cash, plus drug paraphernalia.

As it happens, a relatively new officer handled the call, which he expected would be routine. Officer Travis Alija joined the Takoma Park Police in January, after three years as an Annapolis Police officer; his instincts and experience told him something was amiss when he arrived at the residence.

Alfieri was released on a $100,000 bond; Morsch was released on a $5,000 bond. Trials are pending.

Crime continues to decrease

New statistics show that crime continues to decrease in Takoma Park. For the last five years, the City has experienced significant decreases in “Part I” crime, that is serious crimes such as burglaries, robberies, homicides and rapes. Through the first half of 2012, those crimes have decreased by 15.8 percent compared to the same time period in 2011. The biggest reductions have been in burglaries, which went down by 56.1 percent. Auto theft decreased by 46.8 percent, and aggravated assault decreased by 35.7 percent.

Robberies, however, have increased by 13.3 percent (with 17 incidents in 2012 as opposed to 15 in 2011) and theft went up by 10.4 percent (from 144 to 159 incidents).

Since 2007 overall crime has decreased by 28.9 percent, and it has decreased by some amount in every category. The largest decreases include: auto theft, down 45.7 percent; aggravated assault, down 44.4 percent; and robbery down 42.6 percent.

Chief Ronald Ricucci equates the decrease in crime during his tenure to several factors, such as keeping staffing levels at full strength, retaining experienced officers, embracing community policing, and transparency while working with the community. Emphasis was also placed on better training for officers, equipment upgrades, and development of the crime analysis program.

“As I leave Takoma Park, I believe it is a safer place as a result of the partnership that was created between the police department and the community,” said Ricucci, who retired July 31. “The community has been a vital part of our success in reducing crime. I also want to thank the men and women of the department who by their efforts, have made a significant difference in our city.”

As of June 30, the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department and the personnel of the Montgomery County Fire and Rescue Service assigned to the station have responded to 311 fire-related incidents in 2012. The department addressed or assisted with 1,350 rescue or ambulance-related incidents, for a total of 1,861 this year. Totals for 2011 were 333 and 1,423, representing an increase of 85 incidents.

During Power Outages

The number one thing not to do... avoid using candles for emergency lighting.

If your electrical service goes out, use flashlights and battery-powered lamps when possible.

Don’t use a candle for light when adding any fuel to a heater, lantern or other devices.

Keep candles at least one foot from anything that can burn.

Extinguish all candles when you leave the room or go to sleep.

TPVFD Wins Top Awards

At the 120th Annual Convention of the Maryland State Firemen’s Association held in Ocean City, June 16-22, the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department won top awards in two MSFA fire prevention categories. The contest consisted of book entries from fire departments throughout the state. The books depict fire prevention activities conducted during 2011. TPVFD received a plaque and certificate for first place in the Class V category, and a $200 check for first place overall.

Several others also received recognition:

• EMT Jorge Alfaro received a certificate for the department’s Top Responder Award for 2011. He assisted on 572 calls.

• EMT Mike Livingston received a nomination certificate for the EMS Person of the Year Award.

• The Willey Family (Richard, Tina and Andrew) received a nomination certificate for the Family Appreciation Award.

First responders address major storm

A special thanks to the Montgomery County Fire Rescue Service and Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department personnel that assisted during the major storm that hit the area on the evening of June 29. They were busy for several days throughout the area with numerous calls for trees down, wires down, etc. A job well done by your first responders.

most City elections in Ward 5, which has consistently had the lowest voter turnout of the City’s six wards. Of the 1,114 registered voters who live in Ward 5, 190, or 16.6 percent, cast votes.

The candidates ran a lively race, with a lot of requisite door-knocking and even a few yard signs. A debate organized by the Takoma Voice on July 12 and attended by about 50 people allowed candidates to share their views on several issues, including the hospital, development and engaging a broader array of City residents in local politics.

Smith, a first-time councilmember, has already participated in City affairs as a member of the Commission on Landlord-Tenant Affairs (COLTA), drawn by his interest in advocating for affordable housing and working to improve communication between tenants and landlords. He also served on the Washington Adventist Hospital Land-Use Committee (WAHLUC), and hopes to preserve health services for the City.

Smith highlighted three issues during his campaign, foremost of which was to create more interest and participation in

City policy-making and services from residents in Ward 5. He also wants to protect Sligo Creek and keep it safe for pedestrians; the creek and associated park runs through the ward. And, he lists the preservation of health services at the Washington Adventist Hospital campus as a priority. The hospital is awaiting approval to move its facility out of Takoma Park; if approved, it may be required to leave some services in place.

An eight-year resident of Takoma Park, Smith says he was inspired to serve the City by his father, who served in the Army. A commercial real estate adviser, Smith also volunteers at Accion USA, a North American micro-lender that assists small, local businesses. He has lived in Takoma Park since 2004.

Smith says his mandate for Takoma Park is “to bring my community together and show those residents that didn’t even know they had a councilmember, why it’s important to engage in City politics.” Intent on improving the daily lives of residents, he adds, “No one should go to bed hungry nor should there be trash strewn all over parts of my Ward.”

CRAFT BREWER

ment and go into retail distribution.

It’s quite an entrepreneurial and creative venture for two friends who began brewing on a kitchen stove only five years ago. McGarvey’s girlfriend (now fiancé) Harmony Dale set them on the path by giving him a homebrewer’s kit for his birthday. He made the first batch, and Coleman offered ideas about how to improve it—and they never looked back. “We started making some great beers and experimenting with recipes, and then one thing led to another,” said Coleman. “We asked ourselves, why aren’t these beers like around here? We decided to brew them.”

Coleman and McGarvey embarked on an intensive process to develop their repertoire. They would begin with a basic recipe for an India pale ale, and brew the “base” and four variations simultaneously. Then they would sample each of the five batches, decide what features they liked, and select a best of the bunch. That would become the new base for another quintet of beers. “We’d repeat the process until we made the beer we had in our minds,” said Coleman. Today they have a menu of 12 beers. However, making 5-gallon homebrew batches on a stovetop isn’t the same thing as scaling up to produce hundreds of gallons at a time in 20-barrel fermenters (one barrel is 31 gallons). That’s where McGarvey’s expertise came in. “My educational background is in engineering, so I had the system understanding we needed,” he said. “I also had business experience working with startups to develop business plans and launch products. Together, we felt we had the strengths to make things work.”

They also built on the growing network of craft brewers in the region, a group that didn’t exist when they began homebrewing five years ago. Remarkably, given the proliferation of regional craft brewers, cooperation is far more common than bitter competition. In fact, some 3 Stars beers have been created in collaboration with established Maryland brewers Oliver Ales (Baltimore) and Evolution Craft Brewing Company (Salisbury). “It’s a great beer community,” said Coleman. “People who like great beer and brewing have fundamental connections.”

3 Stars intends to maintain its ties with professionals as well as with amateurs. It opened a homebrew supply store at the brewery several months ago, and store manager Bruno Venini has filled his staff with enthusiastic homebrewers who are ready to talk shop with beginners and experts alike. “All through our build-out, we’ve had a steady stream of interested beer drinkers, bars and retailers looking to stock a local product and volunteers just wanting to be involved in helping the brewery come to life,” McGarvey said.

Selecting Takoma, D.C.

The site build-out took longer and cost more than anticipated, but support from D.C. Councilmember Muriel Bowser helped move things along whenever permitting appointments were delayed. “She was with us every step of the way,” said Coleman, adding that the experience cemented his sense that locating in D.C. was the right thing to do. The name 3 Stars Brewing reflects the three stars on D.C.’s flag. “Neither of us is from here, but we’ve each built careers, found homes, and met our wives in D.C.,” said Coleman, who lives with his wife Nancy in Columbia Heights. “It was imperative to give back to a city that’s given so much to us.”

Yet, locating in Takoma, D.C. was not a foregone conclusion. “We looked at many spots zoned for manufacturing all over the city, but we were instantly won over by this one. We like the personality of Takoma Park,” Coleman said. “It’s community oriented, and it’s Metro accessible. People are change-minded, and we represent something new.”

Just as Coleman and McGarvey hope that the community will embrace 3 Stars Brewing, they plan to support their community. For example, they are working with local bakers who will turn the grains that are beer’s waste product into healthy bread for D.C.’s homeless and hungry children. The plan isn’t yet final, but in sample batches, bakers have made breads that Coleman describes as delicious. “You can make anything with these grains, from a hearty grain bread to sourdough or whatever you want,” he said. “You’ve got these wonderful whole grains, and it’s just shameful that we have hungry kids right here in the nation’s Capitol.”

3 Stars also will be pouring at the popular Beerfest fundraiser sponsored by the Takoma Foundation on Saturday, Oct. 13. For many Takoma Parkers, the event will be their first exposure to 3 Stars and its unique brews, “The District” (an American IPA), “The Urban Farmhouse” (a Belgian ale), “The Southern Belle” (imperial brown ale), and others.

“Can’t wait to share our beers,” said Coleman.
Around the camp fire

It's time for our annual Summer Quest “Campfire,” which will take place on Monday, Aug. 13 from 7-8:30 p.m.

No, we don't really build a campfire in the Library! But we do gather for some camp-like activities, such as singing songs, listening to stories, and creating a simple craft. This year’s theme is fairy-tale inspired.

Registration is strongly encouraged so we can be sure to have enough craft supplies on hand. To register, please go to: www.takomapark.info/library/registration.html or call us at 301-891-7259.

Comics and scribbling

Library Assistant Dave Burbank will lead two events in August. First, there’s the monthly Comics Jam on Monday, Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. Join Burbank, who is our comics guru, as he reads comics on the big screen, the program concludes with Burbank taking drawing requests from the audience.

Then, on Saturday, Aug. 11, from 2-4 p.m., Burbank will offer our latest “Scribber’s Cabal.” This is a great venue for young artists to meet with others who also love to draw, to swap ideas and gain inspiration. Bring your pens, pencils, pads and creativity! Registration encouraged; to register, please go to: www.takomapark.info/library/registration.html or call us at 301-891-7259.

College Bound

The Library’s popular speakers’ series for college-bound students and their parents will return in October. Our expert on college financing, Dr. Herm Davis, author of “Financial Aid for Dummies,” will speak on Thursday, Oct. 4 about the complexities and changes relating to the college loan process, the FAFSA, scholarships and more.

On Tuesday, Oct. 16, Dr. Lorie Ness, a psychologist practicing in Silver Spring who has a particular interest in young people and families dealing with a range of emotional and psychological issues that may arise during the college search and application process, will offer a seminar titled, “Taking the Plunge Without Drowning: Tips for Thriving during the Transition to College.”

On Tuesday, Oct. 23, Dr. Lori Potts-Dupre will return to discuss college choice and an overview of the application process. Potts-Dupre has visited more than 350 colleges nationwide, and will share her insights on helping students find the right fit – academically, financially and personally.

Stay tuned for more details in the September Newsletter, or contact Ellen Robbins at the Library for registration information.
LIBRARY AWARDS

Newbery for ‘Smoky the Cowhorse’ in 1927, (author) Will James had been sent- tenced to 15 months in a Nevada state prison for cattle rustling.

“He was released a month early, as he convinced the parole board that he had written to books for children. Shocking! Just amazing how history repeats itself.”

Gantos made his comments during a hilarious speech to the hundreds of li- brarians gathered at the Newbery/Calde-cott banquet on Sunday, June 24. The banquet is traditionally one of the annual meeting’s high points.

Gantos’s speech, filled with revelatory comic vignettes of the steps – and mis- steps – he took along the way to becoming a children’s author, brought down the house. At the same banquet, author/illus- trator Chris Raschka offered a more in- trospective speech in which he detailed the ingredients of his artistic blossoming.

“First, I’ll draw what I see. Then I’ll draw what I remember. And finally I’ll draw what I think I remember,” said Raschka, who won his first Caldecott Medal in 2006 for “The Hello, Goodbye Window.”

Raschka noted that Daisy, the delight- ful black-and-white dog who stars in his masterpieces, is a lot of trouble. “… after rubbing my nose and clearing my head, I’ve realized that I do have something to say about literature,” Raschka said.

In accepting the award, Schneider said: “I am honored that you not only chose a book about a man who continues to light the best works annually by American librarians and authors.”

A good example is his book, “Evans’ song focused on the importance of freedom for all, and he led the hundreds of librarians at the event in a rousing chorus of ‘I'm walkin’ my way to freedom.’

On Monday evening (June 25), Han- der and Kalman received a standing ovation at the Michael Printz Awards ceremony. The Printz Award is given an- nually to the best-written book for teens, several honor or runner-up books also are usually chosen.

In accepting their Printz Honor for “Why We Broke Up,” Handler and Kal- man performed a dead-pen ditty under- lining the importance of librarians “from cradle to grave.” Handler, also known for writing “A Series of Unfortunate Events” under the pseudonym Lemony Snicket, played the accordion and sang, while Kalman provided “percussion” by tapping shoes on a tabletop, popping a plas- tic bag, etc.

Here’s the chorus: “Without librarians, we’d be dumb. We wouldn’t know our elbows from our hums.”

More honors

While the Caldecott and Newbery Medals are the best-known children’s book awards, the Association for Library Service to Children – the children’s di- vision of the American Library Associa- tion – sponsors a number of other book honors.

Presented at a special event on Monday morning, June 25, those awards include the Robert F. Sibert Medal, given an- nually to the best non-fiction book for chil- dren. (NOTE: MacPherson served on the 2012 Sibert Medal Committee.)

“Balloons Over Broadway” (ages 4-8), a picture book biography of the man who created the technology for the huge Ma- cy’s Thanksgiving Day Parade, won the 2012 Sibert Medal. The book was written and illustrated by Melissa Sweet.

In accepting the award, Sweet said: “I am honored that you not only chose a book about a man who continues to light our imagination, but also a picture book that celebrates the creative process that inspired him.”

During the same event, Josh Schneider, who won the 2012 Theodor Geisel Award for his book, “Tales for Very Picky Eat- ers” (ages 5-8), provoked gaules of laughter with his acceptance speech. The Geisel Award is established to honor the man be- known by Dr. Seuss, is given annually to the best book for beginning readers.

Schneider revealed that he had trouble writing his acceptance speech until he walked into a door by accident one day.

“… what being whapped in the face with a door made me realize… is that I don’t have much to say about this book…” but that I do have something to say about learning to read,” Schneider said.

Reading opens doors. When a child scrapes her way through her first begin- ning reader, she is walking through a door that leads, not just to knowing what Frog and Toad are up to this time, but to a new person.”

Schneider concluded by thanking the door that “whapped” him, adding: “…after rubbing my nose and clearing my head, I looked down, saw that the sign said pull, not push, and walked through yet another door opened for me by reading.”

Writers turn to music

Several children’s and teen book award-winners turned to song to accept their honors at this year’s annual meeting. Among the songsters were: Daniel Han- der and Maira Kalman, authors of “Why We Broke Up” (ages 14 up); Shane Evans, author/illustrator of “Underground” (ages 5-8), and Kirby Heybourne, narra- tor of the audiobook version of “Rotters” (ages 14 and up).

The audiobook version of “Rotters,” a novel written by Daniel Kraus, received the 2012 Odyssey Award, given an- nually to the best audiobook for children or teens. At the Odyssey Award ceremony on Monday (June 25), Heybourne feted librarians in a brief song titled “I’m a Li- brarian.”

Heybourne’s song rhymed “librarian” with words like “humanitarian” and fea- tured a stanza that stated: “If you prick us, do we not … READ?”

Evans, who won the Coretta Scott King Illustrator Award for “Underground” (ages 5-8), began his acceptance speech at the Sunday morning (June 24) event by pulling out his guitar and singing a song he had written for the occasion. The Coretta Scott King book awards highlight the best works annually by African-American illustrators and authors.

Like his book, Evans’ song focused on the importance of freedom for all, and he led the hundreds of librarians at the event in a rousing chorus of “I’m walkin’ my way to freedom.”

On Monday evening (June 25), Han- der and Kalman received a standing ovation at the Michael Printz Awards ceremony. The Printz Award is given an- nually to the best-written book for teens, several honor or runner-up books also are usually chosen.

In accepting their Printz Honor for “Why We Broke Up,” Handler and Kal- man performed a dead-pen ditty under- lining the importance of librarians “from cradle to grave.” Handler, also known for writing “A Series of Unfortunate Events” under the pseudonym Lemony Snicket, played the accordion and sang, while Kalman provided “percussion” by tapping shoes on a tabletop, popping a plas- tic bag, etc.

Here’s the chorus: “Without librarians, we’d be dumb. We wouldn’t know our elbows from our hums.”

Librarians are our friends.

And we should take good care of them.

Because without librarians, we’d be dumb.

With this, the 2012 Printz Medal ceremony concluded.

Friends Reading Group resumes in September

“The Secret Agent” by Joseph Con- rad will be discussed by The Friends of the Takoma Park Maryland Li- brary Reading Group on Tuesday, Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Commu- nity Center.

Called “one of the great novels of modernism,” “The Secret Agent” was written in 1907. It is about “an anarchist plot to blow up the Royal Observatory at Greenwich. In fact, a scheme by a secret police agent to stir up a government backlash, it has acquired a kind of cult status as the classic novel for the post 9/11 age.”

Conrad wrote during the first great terrorist wave of modern times. Be- tween 1881 and 1901, the death toll from anarchist attacks included U.S. presidents Garfield and McKinley, French President Carnot, a Spanish Prime Minister, Carovas, the Austri- an Empress Elizabeth and Umberto I, King of Italy.

His attitude toward terrorism was also influenced by the arrest of his fa- ther as a revolutionary, when he was five years old. The boy Conrad was deported to northern Russia with his parents, who died only a few years later.

“The Secret Agent” was a sensation at the time it was published, and re- mains “the most brilliant novelistic study of terrorism as viewed from the blood-splattered outside.”

Join us for this special book dis- cussion on 9/11. The Friends Reading Group is open to all.

Join us on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center, when a visiting scholar will introduce us to the first of a series of in-depth discussions on Thomas Mann’s magnum opus, “The Magic Mountain.”

First published in 1925, this acclaimed masterpiece by Nobel Prize winner Mann, takes place in the International Sanatori- um Berghof, where its central character, Hans Castorp, spends seven years conva- lescing, “removed from the real world, but irresistibly drawn into the sanato- rium’s own complex, vertiginous society, which…becomes a microcosm for West- ern civilization and its interior life on the eve of the first World War.” [Publishers price]

The Friends Reading Group discus- sions are open to all, and no registration is required. Check the September Newsletter for more details and additional dates.
