Beyond Bike Month: City plans year-round improvements

As another year passes and winter gives in to spring, bicycling continues to be an important part of life, work, and play in Takoma Park. While the recent utilities work has created challenges for cars and bikes along Carroll Avenue, there is reason to be optimistic as new bike-friendly projects and plans in Takoma Park and beyond take shape.

In March, the city's agreement with the Maryland Department of Transportation was executed, committing $100,000 to bike improvements in Takoma Park, including bike lanes in the Ethan Allen Gateway Streetscape project and new and improved bike parking at the Community Center and Recreation Center on New Hampshire Avenue. There will also be "sharrows" - arrows painted on the road surface to indicate a shared road for bikes and cars – along Carroll Avenue where it is too narrow for a bike lane, and on Takoma Avenue near the Metropolitan Branch Trail (MBT).

Meanwhile, the District of Columbia is moving forward to extend the MBT north from Fort Totten Metro into Maryland (see story on page 11), and the Montgomery County Planning Department is revamp-

Tabletop, Spring Mill Bakery are open for business

In late April, two new shops opened for business in Takoma Park.

After 12 years in Dupont Circle, Tabletop, a gift shop, opened a second location in downtown Takoma Park. The new address is 6927 Laurel Ave., the space formerly occupied by Now and Then.

Tabletop is known for featuring a variety of goods from design companies such as Orla Kiely, Rifle Paper and Sagaform, as well as smaller craft companies such as Cate and Levi, Xenia Taler and Velvet Moustache. Washington City Paper declared Tabletop the best place to buy gifts in 2015.

The shop celebrated its new space on April 28 with a ribbon cutting attended by Takoma Park Mayor Bruce Williams and others. A grand opening party followed on Friday, May 1.

To learn more, see www.tabletopdc.com, facebook.com/tabletopdc or instagram. com/thetabletopdc.

Meanwhile, at Takoma Junction, the long-awaited Spring Mill Bread Company opened its fifth Washington metropolitan area location, at 7300 Carroll Ave. The retail bakery bakes breads and sweets known for their natural ingredients and freshlymilled whole wheat flour. Selections are baked daily, from scratch. In addition to breads, Spring Mill offers cookies, muffins, brownies, cupcakes and cinnamon rolls. It has a small seating area and will be serving soups, sandwiches and coffee as well.

Spring Mill also celebrated its opening with an April 28 ribbon cutting. To learn more, see www.springmillbread.com or www.facebook.com/pages/Spring-Mill-Bread-Company.

New apartments going up on Willow Street and Maple

The long-vacant land on Willow Street and Maple Street just on the edge of Takoma's Old Town is buzzing with construction activity, as workers begin to erect two apartment buildings. According to news reports, the buildings are expected to be complete by spring 2016.

The project, located in the historic district of Takoma, D.C. behind the CVS drugstore, broke ground in February and is currently in its initial stages: The foundation has been dug, and structure is beginning to rise. Eventually, what is now a hole in the ground will be two three-story buildings with a total of 99 "garden style" apartments, plus three single family homes. The complex will also include three single-family homes: Two existing early-20th-century homes are being preserved but moved elsewhere on the site. A third home was in such poor shape it was demolished, and will be replaced with a house the developer told elevationdcmedia.com will be in keeping with the historic district. Unlike other recent developments in the area, which have combined ground-floor retail with residential units above, the entire project will be residential

Although Douglas representatives did not return phone calls to confirm, news reports have described the concept plan for the two apartment buildings as including brick exteriors, red tile roofs and multi-pane windows. Each building has a basement and a roof deck. Recent reports indicate a 92-space parking lot, and parking for each of the single-family homes. Apartments - 49 units in one building, 50 in the other – include studios, one-bedroom and two-bedroom units. Eleven of the project's units will be designated as affordable housing, including 10 apartments and one house.

Douglas Development also owns the 161,798-square-foot building at 6856 Eastern Avenue, where a

For O'Connors, Blair Theatre is much more than a show

By Kevin Adler

Rehearsal at a Kelly O'Connor theater production is like any other rehearsal—if that other rehearsal has two casts, a full orchestra, ongoing set construction, a dozen volunteers racing around, and the director's husband, mother and father onsite.

That's a typical Saturday afternoon for Kelly, a Takoma Park resident and the director of the Blair Theatre Program since 1998. She is directing this month's "Fiddler on the Roof."

While the lead actors and ensemble run through the song "To Life," Kelly is backstage, working on costume fittings. Former Blair student Vera Belaia, visiting for the weekend, directs the 30 actors, and former student Brandon Crabtree leads the stage crew.

Then Kelly, a sprightly blonde who looks scarcely older than some of her actors, returns to the stage mid-song. When it's finished, she demonstrates a flourish for the dancers and asks the construction crew to move a house at a sharper angle to the audience.

Meanwhile, the understudies take their places for their run-through of "To Life," and Kelly confers with Vocal Director Jennifer McGinnis. During the song, Kelly exchanges whispered observations with husband and collaborator John O'Connor before dashing backstage again.

"How does it come together? As Philip Henslowe says in the movie 'Shakespeare in Love': 'I don't know. It's a mystery," says John.

Mystery, but it works. "I tell my students in my theater classes that you have to take risks...like speaking in public or singing. These skills will have benefits for the rest of their lives," says Kelly.

"It's not about making great actors," adds John, though the O'Connors have inspired dozens of students to major in the performing arts in college. "It's about learning teamwork and meeting deadlines. And it's about equipping the students to understand theater, to be prepared to read a play and understand a play."

Directing and acting are year-round activities for the pair, with fall and spring plays at Blair; writing, directing and acting in Lumina Theater's adult group; and a summer Shakespeare course in Oxford, England.

Each spring, Blair's musical fills the stage with casts of 40 or more, plus a live student orchestra. "Fiddler" is the weekends of April 24-26 and May 1-2.

Each fall, Blair does a "black box" performance of a drama or comedy, with bleacher-style seating for about 200. Last fall was "Treasure Island," but two out of three years are Shakespeare. "Shakespeare isn't easy, but it's so important for students to start to get hold of that language. And when they get hold of it, it stays with them forever," said Kelly.

And there are practical reasons, too. "No royalties. Lots of speaking parts," John laughed.

Plus, in both spring and fall, the students in Kelly's Blair drama classes perform scaled-down plays from scenes stitched together by John. On May 21-22, they will be showcasing British comic novelist P.G. Wodehouse, free to the public.

Preparation for every show begins with a close reading and discussion of the text, often led by John, a Shake-speare scholar and professor. (Kelly and John met when she took his Shakespeare summer course in Oxford and returned for several years to join his acting company, Cakes and Ale, in England.)

"We ask the kids what questions they have about the scenes they have read. Often what they think is the dumbest question is the one that gets to the heart of the play," he said.

From there, Kelly works on concepts for sets, costumes and on-stage blocking, backed by legions of student and parent volunteers. This year, for example, Blair senior Dio Cramer took almost complete charge of the set design for "Fiddler," evoking Cubist artists such as Georges Braque.

Even when rehearsals begin, change is in the air. "We don't impose blocking at the start. We watch what the actors do, and our job is to say, 'I really like what you did, keep it in,'" said John.

This level of openness extends to welcoming Blair students from every part of the giant school, magnet programs to ESOL. It means giving new actors big roles earlier than they might expect, and graduating students from ensemble to lead roles over the years.

"Kelly and John will give an opportunity to a student that you just don't see other programs doing. It can be adding a student to the ensemble, or making unexpected choices for lead actors," said Joan McFarland, a parent volunteer whose daughter Samantha Chyatte is one of the leads in "Fiddler."

Langston Cotman was given the role of Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls" as a ninth grader, in the first play for which he auditioned. "I went and hammed it up and smiled my butt off. The O'Connors took a chance on me," he said.

From this start, Cotman was in six plays in four years. "They coach you up, and it's more than just learning your lines. They spent a lot of extra time with me," said the

Started in 2009 as a way to spread the word about the Takoma Park Safe Routes to School program, which promotes pedestrian and bicycle safety, the race also has proved to be a great way to get kids and families active. In addition to encouraging safety and exercise, the program seeks to reduce traffic congestion and emissions around schools by getting people out of their vehicles.

Largely because of this race, the City of Takoma Park's Safe Routes to School program is now recognized as a go-to place for pedestrian and bike safety. In October 2012, the program was featured on Fast Lane, the U.S. Secretary of Transportation's blog, when Deputy Secretary of Transportation walked to school with Piney Branch students and presented a national award to the Takoma Park Safe Routes to School program and the participating schools.

More than 45 organizations and businesses have supported the race this year, with sponsorships and in-kind donations

Simmons v. Fairweather Property Management-COLTA Case # 2014-10T

On April 6, 2015, COLTA issued a decision on a tenant's complaint that the agent for the landlord improperly failed to return a portion of her security deposit and accrued interest. The tenant claimed that she was not responsible for the alleged damages that were withheld from her deposit.

Following the February 2015 hearing, COLTA ruled that the landlord had properly withheld $356.23 ($327 for garbage disposal repair and $29.23 for light bulbs) from the tenant's security deposit refund. The Commission additionally ruled that the landlord had improperly withheld $185.89 ($174 for apartment cleaning costs and $11.88 for light bulbs) from the tenant's security deposit refund. The landlord was ordered to provide the tenant with the additional payment of $185.89 within 15 calendar days of the April 6, 2015 order date.

Annual rent increase set at 0.2 percent Effective July 1, 2015 through June 30, 2016

Takoma Park's Rent Stabilization law maintains the affordability of rental units in the community by limiting the number and amount of rent increases allowable for a specific rental unit. Generally, the rent may be increased only once in a given 12-month period, and a two-month written notice is required.

Multi-family rental units and rental condominium units are subject to rent stabilization which limits the rent increase to the percent increase in the Consumer Price Index from March in the preceding year to March in the current year.

Starting on July 1, 2015 and for any rent increases taken through June 30, 2016, the Rent Stabilization Allowance is 0.2 percent. Landlords required to comply with Takoma Park's Rent Stabilization law cannot increase the rent on occupied units any higher than this allowance.

The following units may be exempt from rent stabilization upon application to the city. The exemption is not automatic and is subject to the approval of the city.

- Rental units leased to tenants under the Housing Choice Voucher Program;
- Any rental facility where the rents are regulated under contract by a governmental entity; and
- Newly constructed rental units for a period of five years after construction.

STEAM Gallery Exhibit

May 7 — July 5 Gallery Opening: Thursday, May 7, 7 p.m.

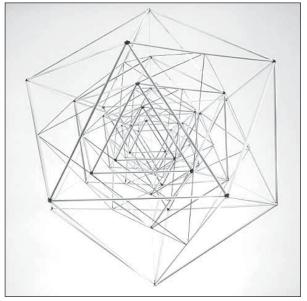

STEAM, the latest gallery exhibit at the Takoma Park Community Center, features work from five artists that combines science and artistic whimsy. The exhibit's acronymic name stands for science, technology, engineering, art and mathematics. STEAM opens on May 7 with a reception from 7 - 9 p.m. in the atrium of the Community Center.

Digital prints from Leda Black's "Celestial Bodies" series will hang in the Atrium gallery in the Community Center. Black's images are digital mash-ups of either animal, plant or human-made objects, and all are inspired by particular celestial bodies, such as stars, asteroids and comets. In the suspended space above the Atrium, mathematical artist Martin Levin will display sculptures that explore both the boundaries and the infinite planes that geometric shapes suggest. "The pieces are designed to encourage the viewer to visualize in their mind what is not shown, but only suggested," explains Levin.

In the Richard Dempsey Memorial Gallery, Historic Takoma will display a series of historic maps dating back to 1922. The display of these maps coincides with Takoma Park's 125th Anniversary. In the Community Center's upstairs gallery, Gallery 3, Cleve Overton's mixed media collages will hang. His pieces are inspired by and made from recycled materials.

The Bridges Organization, which oversees the International Conference of Bridges, will display its two-dimensional and three-dimensional mathematical art, ranging from computer graphics to quilts to geometrical sculptures, in the Corridor Gallery between the library and computer centers. Bridges member and digital artist Reza Sarhangi curated this portion of STEAM. The exhibit will run until July 5.

LIBRARY

Jorge Luis Borges to be the next Reading Group challenge

Join the Friends of the Library Reading Group on Wednesday, May 13, as they discuss selections from the collection

"Ficciones," by Jorge Luis Borges (1899-1986). The discussion will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Rose Room of the Community Center.

"Borges was an Argentine poet, essayist, and short story writer who is considered one of the foremost figures in world literature of the 20th century," according to the New World Encyclopedia. "Borges's reputation rests primarily on his complex and startlingly original short stories, which...present relatively simple philosophical propositions or thought experiments – What would it be like to be immortal? What would it be like if one could not forget anything? – and proceed through fantastic dream-like narratives... His works have been included by critics in the category of 'magical realism,' which introduces some magical elements into an otherwise realist narrative."

"The seventeen pieces in 'Ficciones' demonstrate the whirlwind of Borges's genius and mirror the precision and potency of his intellect and inventiveness, his piercing irony, his skepticism, and his > obsession with fantasy," adds the publisher's note. "Borges sends us on a journey into a compelling, bizarre and profoundly resonant realm; we enter the fearful sphere of Pascal's abyss, the surreal and literal labyrinth of books and the iconography of eternal return. To enter the worlds in 'Ficciones' is to enter the mind of Jorge Luis Borges, wherein lies Heaven, Hell and everything in between."

According to John Updike, "...Borges has lifted fiction away from the flat earth where most of our novels and short stories still take place." A reviewer in The Atlantic Monthly wrote that its stories "throb with uncanny and haunting power." And Mario Vargas Llosa has called Borges "the most important Spanish-language writer since Cervantes"

All are welcome to join the Friends' book discussions. Copies of "Ficciones" are available at the Library.

MOOC meetings inspire learning from historic fiction to Hollywood

A Report from the MOOC crew

By Patti Mallin

This spring, the Sunday afternoon MOOC crew investigated the worlds of historical fiction. At each gathering, anywhere from five to a dozen people explored ever-changing definitions of historical fiction, which we found to be quite the moving target. We heard the differences between how an historian and a journalist approach the research and writing of historical fiction, from the authors themselves. And we learned the phrase "anxiety of influence" to label our concern over how readers of fiction might mistake a novel for historical record -- an example would be the enormous number of stories written about the Salem witch trials compared to the small amount of time spent examining primary

In theory, throughout the week and at our own paces, we followed an online class offered by the University of Virginia via Coursera, where we watched lectures and read excerpts from texts written over the course of hundreds of years. In practice, we staked our Sunday claim to Computer Room B where we discussed the lectures and the assigned readings, explored issues in writing our own works of historical fiction, expressed excitement over Wolf Hall finally appearing on PBS, talked about volunteering for Project Gutenberg, and drank increasing amounts of coffee.

New Takoma Park resident Jean Krueger compares this MOOC to a book club. "I get to hear other readers' take on whatever I'm reading and have often gained insights I would not otherwise have. I find that so in this group, as well. I had not previously given much thought to how historical fiction developed or considered how each author approached it, given known historical facts. I think I will question this more in the future as I read each new book."

Jennifer Bunch, who is currently writing her own work of historical fiction, has a different takeaway from the MOOC. "I'm finding the class discussions extremely helpful in planning my own historical novel by providing the opportunity to hear what other readers of historical fiction like, don't like, and hope to gain from the historical novels they read."

There are a core group of library patrons who participate in almost every MOOC we offer, and others who join for one specific program. In the past we have explored courses titled Ancient Greek Hero and the Moralities of Everyday Life, we have learned "How to Learn" and how Hollywood storytelling changed with advances in technology. As we ease into summer, we are going back to the movies.

Coursera's "Marriage and the Movies" begins online May 18, and we will meet for the five following Sundays at 12:30 p.m. to watch and discuss films that demonstrate how the depiction of marriage has changed over time since the silent film era. To join us, sign up for the online portion of the course at www. coursera.org/course/marriageandmovies and register for our Sunday meetups at www.ta-komapark.info/library/programs.html.

All are welcome!

Patti Mallin is a Library Instructional Assistant who presides at our popular Sunday afternoon massive open on-line course offerings along with public services coordinator Rebecca Brown.

BIKE MONTH

ing its 10-year old Bicycle Master Plan.

Takoma Park residents can celebrate Bike Month this May in Takoma Park with the following local events:

Bike to School Day Wednesday, May 6

All Takoma Park elementary and middle school students are invited to ride their bikes to school on Bike to School Day, Wednesday, May 6. Get your bike ready for spring and summer fun. Wipe off the spider webs, check the tires, brakes and chain and be sure to strap on your helmet. Here's what's happening in Takoma Park on May 6:

Takoma Park Middle School students participating in Bike to School Day will be met with refreshments when they arrive at school. Bike related prize drawings will occur during the course of the day.

Rolling Terrace Elementary School encourages walking and biking to school every Wednesday throughout the year and especially on Bike to School Day.

Piney Branch Elementary School will meet at the Franklin apartment building parking lot, 7620 Maple Ave. at 8:45 a.m. The ride to school will start at 8:55. Maple Avenue will be closed to traffic during the ride and the Takoma Park Police will escort the bicyclists. Extra bike parking will be available in the Community Center basketball court. Students riding a bike, scooter or skateboard must wear a helmet to participate.

Scooters are another great way to get to school on Bike to School Day, May 6 this year.

Piney Branch will also celebrate the #SaveKidsLives Campaign for Global Road Safety Week (May, 4-10) during ts Bike to School Day event on Wednesday, May 6. Piney Branch joins communities around the world working hard to stop deaths and injuries to children on our roads. On Bike to School Day, students, teachers, staff, parents and other community members will have the opportunity to sign the United Nations' Child Declaration urging decision makers to take strong action to make roads safer for children.

They can also take a #safie (not a selfie - a #safie). Taking a #safie is a fun way to show your support. To take part in this campaign, download the #safie signboard, write a safety message and share it on social media including the #Safie and #SaveKidsLives hashtags. All city residents who are concerned about road safety can sign the Declaration and take a #safie. For more information about the Declaration and to download the signboard go to www.safekids.org/safe-roads-safe-kids.

Bike to Work Day Friday, May 15

If you've been telling yourself this will be the year you start commuting to work by bike, then why not start on Bike to Work Day? For the past several years, thousands of commuters in the greater Washington metropolitan area have participated in this morning event to celebrate bicycling as a clean, fun and healthy way to get to work. Three Bike to Work Day pit stops will again be in Takoma Park, at the Gazebo in Old Takoma, on Sligo Creek Trail at New Hampshire Avenue, and at the Takoma/Langley Crossroads Professional Building (7676 New Hampshire Ave.). All three locations have been a big hit with local riders as the event grows every year. Even in last year's torrential storms, cyclists made their way to the rain-orshine pit stops. Registration is free and participants receive a T-shirt, refreshments, and are entered into a raffle for a bicycle and other fun prizes! Register at www.biketoworkmetrodc.com

O'CONNOR

2014 Blair graduate.

Now taking a gap year before starting college in the fall, Cotman got his first chance on a semi-professional stage through the O'Connors. He was in Lumina Theater's adult production of "Our Mutual Friend" in February. Naturally, Kelly played one of the female leads, and John wrote the play as an adaptation of the Dickens novel.

Whether at Blair or Lumina, professionalism is a byword with the O'Connors. Rehearsals start on time; costumes and dances are authentic to their period; actors understand their characters. It even comes down to the smallest detail, like an onstage kiss. "We teach them the 'five-second rule' for kisses," said John. "If they hold that kiss for five seconds, it looks real."

Remarkably, however, neither Kelly nor John have college degrees in drama, though Kelly minored in theater at Catholic University. "I've learned by doing," she said. "I love the rehearsal process, of it all coming together...of seeing what students respond to."

One way the O'Connors incorporate so many students in the musicals is to use "over-studies" and understudies, basically two sets of lead actors. The understudies are guaranteed one performance. For the fall play, the O'Connors build two separate casts, in order to maximize participation.

"It takes a lot of extra work and dedication on their part," said McFarland, who is one of two vocal directors this spring and is a professional choral conductor and singer.

Inclusiveness doesn't just come in numbers, either. "The O'Connors are not afraid to take students who don't have the typical stage 'look' or presence, and work with them," added Judith Arbacher, president of the Blair Theatre Boosters and parent of Rachel, who is the grandmother in "Fiddler."

John O'Connor, left, in rehearsal for Fiddler on the Roof. He and his wife, Kelly O'Connor, are at the heart of the high school theater program.

"It's marvelous because kids come to the play and see someone onstage who looks like them, rather than what you see on TV," said Arbacher. "For some kids in our community, this might be the only live theater that they see, so it's even more meaningful."

Brothers Audrey and Fridien Tchoukoua, who moved to Silver Spring from Cameroon as teens, are examples of how inclusiveness can change lives. With limited English, neither would have seemed to be a likely theater star, but John and Kelly saw something special. Fast-forward a few years, and the brothers are at Sewanee University on full scholarships, Audrey studying theater.

"I was taking ESOL, and my goal was to learn English, to think in English, to be culturally immersed in it," said Audrey. "I can hold a tune and sing with passion, but I had never acted, never seen a professional play."

His singing audition wowed Kelly, and Audrey instantly became part of the Blair

Theatre extended family. "Kelly worked with me to learn pronunciation of American vowels. And they taught me so much about the importance of the collective work of the theater. Those were some of the most meaningful and memorable moments of my life," he said.

The program's support went a step further when Audrey was a senior and cast as "Les Miserables" star Jean Valjean. With family finances tight, Audrey's mother wanted him to take an after-school job rather than the play. Instead, the Blair Boosters funded a "fellowship" for him that was the equivalent of what he could have earned that spring. "I'll never forget it," Audrey said.

It's all part of the "no detail left unattended" attitude that drives the O'Connors.

Kelly admits she's obsessed with costumes, and she's forever sewing and tailoring for the perfect effect. She, her parents and John haunt local thrifts and craft stores for costumes and props, the latter of which take up residence in the O'Connor home. "We have a phonograph in our living room that we bought at Value Village that has probably been in a half-dozen shows," says John.

Their house on Tulip Avenue in Takoma Park is a tribute to the written word. Busts of poets and playwrights, packed bookshelves, and theater posters — as well as umbrella stands, medallions, teacups, and many other curiosities — are the perfect backdrop for occasional theatrical readings and a steady flow of visits from students.

Add it up, and it's a package that has influence far beyond a few kids for a few high school years. For 2004 Blair graduate Jordan (McCraw) Thorley, Kelly is a model for her career as a high school drama teacher in Gloucestershire, England. "Everyone wanted to be around her," said Thorley. "It was a happy place to be in high school."

Thorley said that she applies the lessons she learned acting and on stage crew, from how to run auditions to the importance of giving students a voice. "I love how Kelly gave us creative freedom. It's particularly important in England, where academics are so examination-based, even in drama," she said.

A few years ago, Thorley brought some of her students to the U.S., and they watched the Blair performance of "Taming of the Shrew." "My students were awed. They thought there would be no way these Americans would understand it—because my students have trouble engaging with Shakespeare. But Kelly and John have the ability to make classical works relevant for 15 year-olds. It's a gift," Thorley said.

That gift goes both ways, as the students inspire the O'Connors just as much as they inspire the students. "There's something that young actors bring to the stage. I think it's the heart-on-the-sleeve emotions that are a part of teenage life. Even if a professional actor is more technically proficient, the way that kids are living in the moment adds a special quality to the plays," said Kelly.

Junk vehicles needed

Do you have an old junker littering your driveway? The Takoma Park VFD can take it off your hands – we are currently looking for vehicles to be used for training. If you have a vehicle you would like to donate, call Chief Glenn Butts at the station, 240-773-8954. We'll be glad to pick it up and dispose of it after we finish training with it.

Be prepared for fire

Plan ahead! If a fire breaks out in your home, you may have only a few minutes to get out safely once the smoke alarm sounds. Everyone needs to know what to do and where to go if there is a fire.

- MAKE a escape plan. Draw a map of your home showing all doors and windows. Discuss the plan with everyone in your home.
- KNOW at least two ways out of every room, if possible. Make sure all doors and windows leading outside open easily.
- HAVE an outside meeting place (like a tree, light pole or mailbox) a safe distance from the home where everyone should gather in an emergency evacuaton.
- MAKE sure you have working smoke alarms on all levels of the home. Check them monthly.

Prepare for summer storm season

Were you in Washington, D.C. or College Park area in early April when the power went out at the White House, the Capitol, 13 metro stations, the Smithsonian, the University of Maryland campus and surrounding areas? How did you manage? Was your cell phone working to call family or were you underground at a Metro station without power? Were you in College Park wandering around trying to do without street-crossing lights?

Although the April power outage was caused by the failure of a transmission conductor in Charles County, Md. it's a good warning for what may happen in Takoma Park in the summer due to storms or generator problems. So—what can you do?

Long-term outage, continuing storms

The following will ensure you're ready if the power goes out for days:

- Have a plan to stay in touch with your family and a meeting place if you get separated.
- Make a basic emergency kit: 1 gallon of water per person per day; food for three days per person; flashlight and batteries; and a battery-operated radio to stay informed.
- Schedule a block or building preparedness meeting with our City Emergency Preparedness manager Ron Hardy (ronh@takomaparkmd.gov)

• Go to www.ready.gov or www.redcross. org to learn more on preparedness.

Short term outage

Consider this an 'indoor camping' experience – without having to put up the tent! Make sure you have the following on hand:

- A lantern with a large battery (periodically check this to make sure the battery is OK)
- Several flashlights close at hand (near the bed, the desk, and downstairs) that you can easily retrieve when the power goes out
- Working batteries that fit each item (try using masking tape to mark when they were bought)
- Phone numbers for contacts that are easily accessible
- Alternative phone options, such as a non-cell phone or car charger (be careful going down the stairs to get to the car!)
- Easy access to medications that must be taken in evenings (take the flashlight or lantern):
- Bottled water

Jim Jarboe receives NVFC Fire Prevention and Education Award

Award sponsored by First Alert

The National Volunteer Fire Council presented Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department Chief Jim Jarboe its 2015 NVFC Fire Prevention and Education Award last month. The award, sponsored by First Alert, honors a volunteer firefighter or nonoperational volunteer who exemplifies the philosophy of fire prevention.

Jarboe is well known in the community for more than 50 years of service, offering safety education through his long association with Takoma Park Fire Department. What Takoma Parkers may not know is that Jarboe also participates actively with a number of Maryland fire safety groups, including the Maryland State Fireman's Association Fire Prevention Committee and the Fire and Burn Safety Coalition of Maryland.

On the home front, Jarboe has coordinated and been the lead instructor of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department's Babysitter's Safety Training Program since 1964. More than 2,500 girls and boys have completed the 10-hour program under his leadership. Since 1982, Chief Jarboe has authored the monthly Firehouse Report column in the city's newsletter, which includes fire safety messages, response statistics, fire loss data and more. Each Halloween he paints pumpkins and displays them throughout the area with safety tips for trick-or-treating. He also coordinates a partnership with the Lions Club and Holy Cross Hospital blood drives to provide fire safety information to blood donors.

Throughout his tenure at the department, Jarboe has helped to design emergency preparedness brochures; developed, organized and coordinated the city-wide Operation Smoke Detector Check project; served as a safety monitor at the city's annual Halloween haunted house; and provided a weekly hour-long fire safety segment at the local college radio station. Jarboe also continues to provide fire safety tips during department programs and city events.

The Fire Prevention and Education award was established in memory of volunteer firefighter Marc Mueller. According to NVFC's web site, Mueller "energetically promoted the causes of volunteer firefighters and supported all efforts to elevate the volunteer program to its highest level. He dedicated much of his life to public service and made major strides to bring prestige, credibility and recognition to volunteer firefighters nationwide."

Jim Jarboe exemplifies a similar community spirit.

league, the winter basketball league and the adult coed softball league. He's still a soccer commissioner and the baseball fields coordinator, and "Team Howard" still plays softball, with Kohn occasionally "pitching" in as emeritus coach.

On the civic scene Kohn was in the fore-front of the campaign for the community center, chaired the Recreation Committee for many years and helped revive the Takoma Foundation. He's also been active in the Takoma Junction revitalization, the Old Town "main street" effort and upkeep of the woods between Piney Branch Elementary and Takoma Park Middle School. He also helped lead the fight for the new Blair High School and served at Blair as a soccer coach and PTSA officer.

At present Kohn is a member or organizer of the Independence Day Committee, Community Health and Empowerment through Education and Research (CHEER), Takoma United for an Engaged Community, MLK Service Day, the Celebrate Takoma festival, the Ready-by-21 Youth Collaborative and the Takoma Park Commemoration Commission. His most recent passion is as a weekend teacher at the youth demonstration gardens on Community Center grounds.

Over more than 30 years as a Takoma Park resident, Kohn has led by example, engaging other volunteers and helping to create a vibrant, engaged community here in this small city. As staff members of the Takoma Park Recreation Department, we congratulate him on this well-deserved award and extend our most sincere thanks for his continuing and generous contribution of time and talent to our programs, and to the community at large.

DDOT Plans Met Branch Trail Extension into Maryland

The Metropolitan Branch Trail (MBT), long planned to connect Takoma Park and Silver Spring with downtown Washington, D.C. took another crank of the pedal closer to completion last month. The District Department of Transportation (DDOT) released early plans for the trail improvement and extension running from the Brookland neighborhood near the Catholic University of America in D.C., up past the Fort Totten Transfer Station and Metro Station, and snaking adjacent the Red Line tracks, mostly via a new, separated trail on Blair Road.

The MBT is an important route for commuters heading both north and south between its termini at the Silver Spring Metro Station in Maryland and Union Station in D.C., with several destinations along the way. Many bicyclists use the current interim on-road routes between the trail segments in Takoma Park and downtown D.C. The segments currently under design will help bridge these important gaps, providing a cycling facility through difficult areas like the Fort Totten Transfer Station and adjacent National Park Services Lands. The schedule anticipates the final design will wrap up in 2016, with construction beginning in 2017.

Not included at this time is the segment along Maple, Cedar and Carroll streets and Eastern Avenue in Takoma D.C., though DDOT does plan to extend the Takoma Park segment of the trail to Piney Branch Road. The agency is still planning routes for the trail east and west of the Takoma Metro Station.

ranging from $20 to $5,000. Top funders include Lusid Media, Finn Family Group, and Social and Scientific Systems, Inc.

Money raised from the race supports the PTA at five schools in the City of Takoma Park: Piney Branch Elementary, Takoma Park Elementary, East Silver Spring Elementary, Rolling Terrace Elementary and Takoma Park Middle School.

Schools find creative ways to use their funds, 50 percent of which are required to go towards pedestrian and bike education or health and fitness programming. For example, Piney Branch Elementary used proceeds to buy playground equipment and East Silver Spring Elementary now sponsors the popular "run club" which has more than 100 members.

This family friendly race is open to all ages and abilities. Participants can run or walk a ¼ mile, mile or 5K (3.2 miles). For more information on how to participate visit: www.tkpk5k.com.

The Takoma Park Safe Routes for Kids 5K is popular among families.

iCan Shine uses adapted equipment, trained professionals and volunteer spotters. With 75 minutes of instruction over five days, more than 80 percent of riders learn to ride a conventional bicycle independently by the end of camp.

Spaces are available for riders ages 8 to 14 years old. To be eligible to enroll, riders must have an intellectual or physical disability, be able to walk without an assistive device such as a walker or cane, be able to side-step quickly to both sides, must have a minimum inseam measurement of 20 inches and weigh no more than 220 pounds. Riders must wear their own bike helmet and must have an appropriate personal bike available for the iCan Bike program by no later than Thursday (Day Four) of the program. The goal is to transition all riders to their own bikes towards the latter part of the week.

Two volunteer "spotters" are needed per rider. Spotters work with the same rider for each of the five days and experience the thrill of giving the gift of riding a bike! Volunteers must be at least 16 years old (unless accompanied by an adult); be able to attend 90 minutes at the same time each of the five days of camp (15 minutes of training/daily debriefing, 75 minute session); be able to provide physical, emotional and motivational support to the assigned rider and be able and willing to get some exercise (light jogging/running) for a great cause!

This iCan Shine Bike Camp is free. Spaces are still available.

To register for the camp or sign on to volunteer, contact Lucy Neher, lucyn@takomaparkmd.gov.

number of businesses and services are located. Douglas is planning renovations on that building, which was originally built in 1956 and for many years housed the Seventh Day Adventist offices and publishing operation. The plan is to convert some of the ground-floor space to retail, and use the upper floors for offices.

Among the current tenants there are the Takoma Children's School, AYUDA, several offices and an e-commerce business, BrightLife Direct, that sells compression garments. There are also a number of arts-related businesses there: Washington Opera is on the third floor, with studios, rehearsal space and business offices. D.C. Arts Studios, formerly A Salon, is a collective of about 70 working artist studios there. And two dance studios are on the first floor: The Lab D.C., a breakdancing school, and Knock On Wood tap dancing studio.

Around the corner at 6896 Laurel Street NW, Douglas also owns the building currently occupied by the EF International Language Center.
